New Riot Breaks Out in Joliet Penitentiary Today

PRISON BAND BECOMES UNRULY DURING REHEARSAL

5 TAKEN TO HOSPITAL, 1 THROWN INTO SOLITARY CONFINEMENT

RIOT ATTRIBUTED TO GENERAL UNREST PREVAILING AT INSTITUTION

Stateville Prison, Joliet, Ill., March 17.—(U.P.)—Part of the Stateville prison band started a riot during rehearsal today, battling among themselves for a quarter of an hour with chairs, instruments and music stands before quieting down of their own accord.

After the fight six of the convict-musicians were taken to the prison hospital, five of them cut and bruised severely and one slightly. One other of the musicians was thrown into solitary confinement for questioning as to the cause of the disturbance.

Fearful of another serious riot like the one last Saturday in the old prison on the edge of Joliet, Warden Henry C. Hill hastened to the aid of his chief deputy, Frank Kness, as soon as word of the outbreak was flashed to his office. He arrived, however, after the battle was over.

The first Kness knew of the rioting was when a guard sighted a convict limping toward the hospital. From him the guard learned the prisoners had been battling in the bandroom and the remainder of the score of convicts were rounded up and herded into their cells.

The story of the rioting as pieced together by Kness, who has been on duty day and night since Saturday, was that the musicians began arguing among themselves about staging a riot as soon as the bandmaster left the room for a special St. Patrick's Day concert.

Part of the score set upon the convicts who demurred at rioting. Fists, chairs, music stands and instruments flew in the melee. The convicts, most of them young men in the prison for minor offenses, surged and battled back and forth in the bandroom. Guards stationed nearby but outside the room did not hear the disturbance.

After 15 minutes or so the convicts quit of their own accord and the injured ones started toward the hospital.

Kness and Hill said while several of the men were cut, guards were unable to find any knives. Apparently the convicts fought with saxophones, trombones, drumsticks or whatever weapons they could lay their hands on, Hill said.

Hill attributed the riot to the general unrest in the two prisons four miles apart after the more serious rioting last Saturday. Only Sunday Kness unearthed a plot for a wholesale break, confiscating six saws and a code message which contained plans for the break.

BRAVE GIRL SAVES HER SISTER

SERIOUSLY INJURED GIRL IN CAR HOLDS SISTER'S HEAD ABOVE WATER AN HOUR

Willits, Cal., March 17.—(U.P.)—Although seriously injured when pinned in a partly submerged automobile, Vivian Spencer, 22, held her unconscious sister above water for more than an hour today while awaiting help.

Miss Spencer and Mrs. Dinah Wagner, 21, were riding with Michael Fielding, a salesman, north of here when the automobiles plunged over a 100-foot embankment into the swollen waters of Rattlesnake creek.

Fielding, suffering three broken ribs and other injuries, extricated himself and then collapsed. Mrs. Wagner was unconscious from three broken vertebrae and would have drowned had not her sister held her head above water. Miss Spencer received severe internal injuries.

All were removed to a hospital here and were expected to recover.

William H. Park, Former Milwaukee Publisher, Dies

Milwaukee, Wis., March 17.—(U.P.)—William H. Park, 75, former owner and publisher of the Milwaukee Daily News, died today at his home after an illness of pneumonia. Park published the Daily News from 1888 to 1918 when it was consolidated with the Evening Wisconsin to become the Wisconsin News. Since that time he had been active in civic affairs.

Peggy Ann Hoover is Six Years Old Today

Asheville, N. C., March 17.—(U.P.)—Peggy Ann Hoover, granddaughter of President Hoover, arrived here today to celebrate her sixth birthday with her father, Herbert Hoover, Jr., who is convalescing at Blue Briar cottage.

BURGLAR STAGES AN IMPROMPTU GUN BATTLE WITH HIMSELF

Cleveland, O., March 17.—(U.P.)—The burglar who staged an impromptu gun battle with himself in the Frank Fraiberg music store today evidently was so thoroughly disguised that he did not recognize himself.

After rifling the cash register of $50, the robber confronted his own image in a full view mirror as he turned around. Apparently mistaking it for an interloper, he fired three shots at the reflection, plunged head first through a plate glass window to the street and escaped amid a fusillade of shots fired from an approaching police car.

118 SURVIVORS STRUGGLE OVER THE ICE FLOES

CAPTAIN OF SEALER UNABLE TO ACCOUNT FOR THE SHIP BLOWING UP

3 AMERICANS NUMBERED AMONG 25 MISSING, FEARED THEY ARE DEAD

By JOHN T. MEANEY (United Press Correspondent)

St. John's, N. F., March 17.—The survivors of the wrecked sealer Viking, half starved, suffering from exposure and many of them injured, were cared for by the inadequate facilities of barren Horse Island today, while a full estimate of the tragedy surrounding them was slowly being pieced together by radio from the island.

The latest word said 118 survivors had struggled across the treacherous ice floes to the island since Saturday night, when the sealer blew up and burned. The remaining 25 of the 143 persons aboard were missing, and it was feared they were dead. They included the three Americans—Patrick Frissell, New York explorer; Henry J. Sargent, Boston explorer; and A. E. Penrod, of New York and Connecticut, cameraman.

The news from the island was being sent out by Miss Otis Bartlett, the operator of the feeble Horse Island transmitter. The first coherent statement by Capt. Abram Kean, Jr., of the Viking, who is on Horse Island badly injured, was sent out today. Kean expressed the belief that the three Americans were killed in the explosion. He was in critical condition, awaiting arrival of relief ships with doctors and medicine, and painfully made the following statement:

"I am unable to account for the cause of the disaster. It was due, in my opinion, to an explosion in the magazine while the boatswain and men were opening a powder keg for the next day's use. That is merely surmise, of course.

"I think all the men in the cabin section were killed outright by the explosion. They included Frissell, Sargent, Penrod, the engineers, wireless operator, navigator, cooks, cabin steward and boatswain. The mate had a leg broken and I don't think he will survive."

Previous unconfirmed reports had suggested Frissell, a kinsman of Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, was seen alive on the ice after the disaster, but grave fears were now felt for his safety, in view of the captain's statement.

The Viking carried 138 sealing men, the three New Yorkers and two stowaways. The explosion tore the after part of the ship in pieces on Sunday night, killing and maiming those within range. The survivors fled from the burning ship to the ice, without time to get adequate provisions or clothing, and since then have been making their painful way across the floes to the island.

The steamers Foundation Franklin and Sagona, with food, medicine and doctors, were making a slow passage to the island through heavy seas and ice. The Foundation Franklin was expected to reach the scene late today.

5 Lose Lives in Jamestown, R. I. Sanitarium Fire

Jamestown, R. I., March 17.—(U.P.)—Five persons were dead and two were under hospital treatment today after a fire which destroyed a cottage at a private sanitarium here last night. Eleven other persons at the institution, operated by Dr. William Lincoln Bates, an alienist, were unharmed.

Treasurer Charged with Shortage in Accounts

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 17.—(U.P.)—Charged with a shortage of $6,900 in his accounts, Gunder G. Watnaas, Folsom township treasurer, was in jail today. Watnaas was a leading citizen in the township and had been prominent in church work for many years.

REVIEW OF IRELAND ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY BY W. T. COSGRAVE

PRESIDENT OF THE IRISH FREE STATE SAYS YOUNG STATE ENJOYS PEACE, PROGRESS

HAS BEEN LESS THAN A DECADE IN CONTROL OF HER OWN AFFAIRS

By WILLIAM T. COSGRAVE President, Irish Free State (Written for the United Press)

Dublin, March 17.—St. Patrick's Day, 1931, finds our young state enjoying peace and progress.

After less than a decade of years in control of her own affairs she has recently been elected a member of the League of Nations. Her minister plenipotentiaries have been received in the Vatican state, in the United States, France and Germany, and the ministers of those states have been appointed to represent their respective governments in her capital. Her credit is well maintained at home and abroad. National securities are steady at a premium, and compare most favorably in Wall Street with those of the strongest nations of the world. Her net public debt is little more than six pounds sterling per head of the population, and represented last year only 63 per cent of the normal year's revenue. Much of it too has been applied to productive purposes. Taxation per head has been reduced from $8.13 in 1922-23 to $6.18 in 1930-1932. The visible adverse balance of trade, always a factor of concern to a government, has been reduced in the past four years by $7,000,000 or over 40 per cent. These results have been achieved by a prudent financial policy and by energetic application on the part of her citizens to the practical affairs of business.

The problem of unemployment that has seriously affected many countries in the prevailing world depression is less serious here than elsewhere. The number of registered unemployed remains substantially the same in October, 1930 (30,775) as in October, 1929. A recent report of the international labor office showing the trend of unemployment in twenty-eight countries places the Irish Free State as the only country which does not show a deterioration in this respect.

The development of our tourist traffic has been taken in hand by the Irish tourist association. Railways, omnibuses and hotel are combining to develop the amenities of travel. Ireland has many and varied scenic attractions. Excellent hunting, racing, fishing, shooting, golf and sea bathing are to be had in abundance. Motorists will find our roads as good as in most countries.

On the fifteenth hundredth anniversary in 1932 of the coming of St. Patrick, Ireland will be honored with the greatest of rewards for the fidelity of her people to the faith which St. Patrick brought to her shores. In that year the thirty-first international Eucharistic Congress will be held in Dublin. It will constitute a solemn and momentous occasion for Ireland and one in which the people of all countries will unite. The close ties of blood and the tradition of friendship between

Ireland and the United States ensure a specially cordial welcome from us to our visitors from America.

Clarinda, Ia., March 17.—(U.P.)—The story of the mysterious killing of Mrs. Irvin Beach, 64, was locked today in the mind of her paralyzed husband, who watched, helpless, as she was slain, but could not tell what had happened because he could neither speak nor move.

Beach died today unable to tell authorities the story of the crime. In the same room in which the bruised body of his wife lay, Beach was found by police late yesterday. He was semi-conscious and lay behind the bed to which he was confined two weeks ago by a stroke. Nearby was the body of Mrs. Beach, her throat stuffed with rags.

Officials advanced the theory that the woman had been slain on Sunday night by robbers. While there was no proof that the husband had not been attacked before his wife was killed, it was believed he had witnessed the tragedy as he lay on his bed, unable to help or to cry out, and that he later was beaten into insensibility.

A radio was turned on and an electric light near the bed was burning when police entered the home. Furniture was strewn about the floor of Beach's room.

Beach's condition was serious, due to the attack and his paralysis. Physicians said he might never recover sufficiently to tell the story of the crime.

Prominent at Progressive Conference

Among the prominent figures at the meeting of 150 Progressives at Washington were these insurgent Senators. Left to right: Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin, William E. Borah of Idaho and Bronson Cutting of New Mexico. Senator Norris of Nebraska was chairman of the meeting and led the attack on the power interests which he accused of widespread corruption of public officials.

PREPARING QUARTERS ON SHIPBOARD FOR PRESIDENT HOOVER

Washington, March 17.—(U.P.)—Two rooms and bath with a brass bed instead of the traditional sailor's hammock are being prepared for President Hoover aboard the U. S. S. Arizona, on which he will visit Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Mr. Hoover and his party expect to leave Washington by train tomorrow night and sail from Norfolk Thursday.

Galley space has been reserved for a White House chef if Mr. Hoover cares to bring one. And a forehanded navy has allotted storage space for any special delicacies the president might send aboard to vary the regular navy fare.

The two rooms and bath to be used by Mr. Hoover are known as the admiral's suite. Even cruisers nowadays contain such comfortable if not luxurious quarters for high ranking officers.

Coming as she does from 21 months of modernization, the Arizona is a model from plumbing to bilayers, the latter being bulges along the water line designed to frustrate torpedoes directed at the vitals of the ship.

STORY OF MYSTERY KILLING LOCKED IN PARALYZED MIND

IRVIN BEACH, OF CLARINDA, IA., LAY HELPLESS AS WIFE WAS SLAIN

CANNOT TELL WHAT HAPPENED, AS HE CAN NEITHER MOVE NOR SPEAK

Clarinda, Ia., March 17.—(U.P.)—The story of the mysterious killing of Mrs. Irvin Beach, 64, was locked today in the mind of her paralyzed husband, who watched, helpless, as she was slain, but could not tell what had happened because he could neither speak nor move.

SENATE COMMITTEE FORMAL REPORT IS TO BE PRINTED

MOTION IN HOUSE TO REFER ENTIRE MATTER TO BOARD OF REGENTS

SENTIMENT GAINS GROUND TO LET UNIVERSITY WORK OUT ITS OWN SOLUTION

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(U.P.)—Minnesota legislators could not decide today if they should take sides in the discussions of whether 15 suspended students at the University of Minnesota farm school should be reinstated or not.

In the senate, a formal report of a special senate committee was ordered printed and went over until today. The report suggested that the suspended students be given their diplomas within three months without doing extra work.

In the house, Representative John E. Kozlak, Minneapolis, filed notice of debate on a motion to refer the entire matter to the board of regents of the university. Kozlak's action prevented the representatives from voting on the measure to keep their hands off and let the university work out its own solution.

No proposals were made to force farm school officials to reinstate two expelled students whom officials claim were "campus bootleggers." The 15 other students will be allowed to obtain their degrees eventually, it was said on behalf of the university administration. Legislators were concerned in how long 13 seniors would have to wait for their degrees and whether they would have to do extra work but did not decide whether to take formal action.

Meanwhile the house appropriations committee voted to give the university less money than requested but more than during the last two years. The committee voted 20 to 11 to appropriate $3,400,000 for the institution.

The university last night entertained members of the senate finance committee at dinner when appropriations were discussed.

Members committee of the legislature yesterday made threats of withholding the university's funds unless "satisfactory arrangements" were made for reinstatement of the suspended students.

Wets Win Out in Test Vote on Bill Defining Intoxicants

St. Paul, March 17.—(U.P.)—Debate between prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists broke out in the state senate today in a vote on a bill which would amend Minnesota's laws so that the state's definition of intoxicating liquor would conform with any change of definition that may be made by congress.

If the bill were passed, it would mean that should congress pass legalized beer and light wines they also would be legal in Minnesota.

The wets won out, 35 to 26, in a test vote.

18th International Flower Show Opens in New York Today

New York, March 17.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Payne Whitney and a brigade of debutante shock troops, embowered in a wilderness of roses, held sway today in Grand Central Palace, where the 18th International Flower show is blooming.

A casual visitor, unversed in the flora and fauna of the U. S. A., might mistake the show for either a wedding or a funeral. Sweet scents crowd the air; dowers cluster around rock gardens with the proper air of reverence; the debutantes think it is "just too gorgeous."

Out across the blossoms go the strains of such elegant music as "The Wedding of the Sunshine and the Rose," "Spring, Beautiful Spring" and "Madame Butterfly." The idea is to fit the music to the flowers. Some very beautiful effects are achieved.

EYE WITNESS TELLS OF SHIP BLAST DISASTER

VIKING TREMBLED AS IF IT HAD BEEN RAMMED BY A POWERFUL STEAMER

ROAR WAS LIKE THE EXPLODING OF A HUNDRED TORPEDOES

The following description of the Viking disaster by one of the survivors was received by the United Press correspondent at St. Louis after repeated requests for an eye-witness account had been sent to Horse Island. The difficulty of communication with the island delayed the messages for hours.

By HENRY BROWN Survivor of the Viking Disaster (Copyright, 1931, by United Press)

Horse Island, Newfoundland, March 17.—(By radio to St. John's)—All hands on the sealing ship Viking (lying off Horse Island) were settling away for the night—some lying in their berths smoking and some singing hymns—when the ship trembled as if it had been rammed by a powerful steamer and there was a roar like the exploding of a hundred torpedoes.

The men along the main berth section midship to forecabin were thrown out of their berths. Others were knocked down. We were all dazed by a terrible crashing sound and the ship dipped. The lights went out.

We were dazed for a moment and then there were screams on all sides. We struggled to make our way to the deck. I believe that every man forward of the engine room escaped without injuries more serious than a few bruises. We were all out on the ice soon, and then we realized what had happened.

We saw all the after part of the ship blown to pieces—parts of the deck and sides, mizzen mast and quarter deck and everything movable scattered about the ice. Among the wreckage we could see bodies lying motionless and other men struggling to get out of the wreckage. They were moaning and calling for help from all sides.

The after part of the vessel had almost disappeared except for the wreckage strewn on the ice. A fire started in the engine room and also from the second deck abaft the forecabin. Some closely packed ice kept the forward part of the ship from sinking right away.

Some of the men tried to get back between decks to get their clothing. They couldn't get much. The flames and smoke made it impossible to get below deck, but some of the men got a little food before the fire had burned much.

We helped the injured men to get out of the wreckage. Some of the men were killed and others were maimed and died soon. Some others died on the way to the shore.

Nobody knows how many were killed but we think there were about 22. I don't know how many were injured. There were two stowaways on the ship. Both of them reached the island safely, and uninjured.

I have not seen the New York men since the explosion, but I heard Frissell was with the survivors on the ice.

We don't know what caused the explosion, but don't think it was the boiler because the damage was greatest amidship. Most of the missing were killed in their berths, and went down with the ship. Captain Kean was rescued in an unconscious condition.

I think some of the injured will reach shore, because their shipmates are sticking by them.

CHARGED WITH THE MURDER OF ALFRED J. LINGLE

DEFENDANT TAKES ACTIVE INTEREST IN SELECTION OF THE JURY

PROBABILITY GROWS THAT THE JURY WILL BE COMPLETED BY END OF WEEK

By WILLIAM E. HALLBERG (United Press Staff Correspondent) Chicago, March 17.—Leo V. Brothers discarded his indifferent attitude today and became active in directing examination of prospective jurors for his trial on charges of murdering Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Brothers' prodding increased the tempo of the morning session for a time but when the noon recess was taken only three jurors had been tentatively accepted by both the state and the defense. The exercise of three peremptory challenges and detailed questioning of prospective jurors delayed progress.

Brothers apparently was responsible for his attorney stressing the $25,000 reward offered by the Tribune for Lingle's slayer, the imposing array of legal talent, and the columns of publicity given to the announcement of the defendant's arrest.

A family reunion under strained circumstances before court opened brought together Leo, his father, Harvey Brothers, Chicago barber, his mother, Mrs. Rose Jensen, Webster Grove, Mo., and his sister, Mrs. Esther Dick, St. Louis.

Harvey Brothers had visited his son a half an hour before court opened. Later, father and son posed affectionately before cameramen. Flashlights were popping when Mrs. Jensen and Mrs. Dick, delayed in reaching court, pushed through the crowded anteroom.

Mrs. Jensen walked directly past her former husband, without a glance at him, and pulled Leo into a corridor for a private greeting, while a deputy sheriff held back the curious.

Mrs. Dick sobbed, and threw her arms around her father. They had not seen each other for almost a year and their welcome was almost hysterical as they clung together.

3 HOWARD LAKE BOYS IN TROUBLE

UNDER COMMITMENT TODAY TO BE RETURNED TO TEXAS ON MURDER CHARGE

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(U.P.)—Three 18-year-old youths from Howard Lake, Minn., were under commitment today to be returned to Belton, Texas, on a charge for murder.

They were arrested at Buffalo, Minn., in connection with the robbery of an oil station. Governor Floyd B. Olson granted extradition after evidence had been given that they killed W. C. Sandford, proprietor of an oil station near Little River, Texas, last Feb. 12. The three gave their names as Harold Birkholz, Willard Birkholz and Edward Ordham.

PIETRO CARDINAL MAFFI DIES AT PISA

Pisa, Italy, March 17.—(U.P.)—Pietro Cardinal Maffi, one of the most prominent members of the sacred college, died today at the age of 78.

Death of the cardinal, who was considered for the papacy upon two occasions, was caused by heart trouble and pneumonia. The news was communicated to Pope Pius and King Victor Emmanuel long close friends of the cardinal.

Cardinal Maffi, who was archbishop of Pisa, was famous as a mathematician and astronomer, and was widely known for his book, "The Map of the Skies Through the Camera."

He was decorated with collar of Annunciation, the highest decoration of Italy, on the same day he officiated at the wedding of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium. He was the first cardinal to receive the honor since 1870, and thereby became a "cousin" of the king.

Cardinal Maffi was an opponent of the fascist government when it was established by Premier Benito Mussolini. A few years after the fascist regime was established he wrote a Lenten pastoral letter attacking the attitude of the government toward the terroristic incidents than so frequent in Italy. The message was not published in Italy because of government censorship.

Hold Annual School for County Assessors of State

Mahnomen, Minn., March 17.—(U.P.)—The series of annual schools for county assessors conducted by the tax commissioner will be opened Wednesday by George E. Wallace, Governor Floyd B. Olson's newly appointed tax commissioner. Thursday Wallace will conduct a school at Detroit Lakes and on Friday will visit Moorhead. Other members of the tax commission will conduct similar schools in other parts of the state beginning Monday.

Among the prominent figures at the meeting of 150 Progressives at Washington were these insurgent Senators. Left to right: Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin, William E. Borah of Idaho and Bronson Cutting of New Mexico. Senator Norris of Nebraska was chairman of the meeting and led the attack on the power interests which he accused of widespread corruption of public officials.

Ireland has many and varied scenic attractions. Excellent hunting, racing, fishing, shooting, golf and sea bathing are to be had in abundance. Motorists will find our roads as good as in most countries.

On the fifteenth hundredth anniversary in 1932 of the coming of St. Patrick, Ireland will be honored with the greatest of rewards for the fidelity of her people to the faith which St. Patrick brought to her shores. In that year the thirty-first international Eucharistic Congress will be held in Dublin. It will constitute a solemn and momentous occasion for Ireland and one in which the people of all countries will unite. The close ties of blood and the tradition of friendship between

Ireland and the United States ensure a specially cordial welcome from us to our visitors from America.

Washington, March 17.—(U.P.)—Two rooms and bath with a brass bed instead of the traditional sailor's hammock are being prepared for President Hoover aboard the U. S. S. Arizona, on which he will visit Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Mr. Hoover and his party expect to leave Washington by train tomorrow night and sail from Norfolk Thursday. Galley space has been reserved for a White House chef if Mr. Hoover cares to bring one. And a forehanded navy has allotted storage space for any special delicacies the president might send aboard to vary the regular navy fare.

The two rooms and bath to be used by Mr. Hoover are known as the admiral's suite. Even cruisers nowadays contain such comfortable if not luxurious quarters for high ranking officers.

Coming as she does from 21 months of modernization, the Arizona is a model from plumbing to blisters, the latter being bulges along the water line designed to frustrate torpedoes directed at the vitals of the ship.

In the house, Representative John E. Kozlak, Minneapolis, filed notice of debate on a motion to refer the entire matter to the board of regents of the university. Kozlak's action prevented the representatives from voting on the measure to keep their hands off and let the university work out its own solution.

No proposals were made to force farm school officials to reinstate two expelled students whom officials claim were "campus bootleggers." The 15 other students will be allowed to obtain their degrees eventually, it was said on behalf of the university administration. Legislators were concerned in how long 13 seniors would have to wait for their degrees and whether they would have to do extra work but did not decide whether to take formal action.

Meanwhile the house appropriations committee voted to give the university less money than requested but more than during the last two years. The committee voted 20 to 11 to appropriate $3,400,000 for the institution.

The university last night entertained members of the senate finance committee at dinner when appropriations were discussed.

Members committee of the legislature yesterday made threats of withholding the university's funds unless "satisfactory arrangements" were made for reinstatement of the suspended students.

Wets Win Out in Test Vote on Bill Defining Intoxicants

St. Paul, March 17.—(U.P.)—Debate between prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists broke out in the state senate today in a vote on a bill which would amend Minnesota's laws so that the state's definition of intoxicating liquor would conform with any change of definition that may be made by congress.

If the bill were passed, it would mean that should congress pass legalized beer and light wines they also would be legal in Minnesota.

The wets won out, 35 to 26, in a test vote.

SENATE COMMITTEE FORMAL REPORT IS TO BE PRINTED

MOTION IN HOUSE TO REFER ENTIRE MATTER TO BOARD OF REGENTS

SENTIMENT GAINS GROUND TO LET UNIVERSITY WORK OUT ITS OWN SOLUTION

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(U.P.)—Minnesota legislators could not decide today if they should take sides in the discussions of whether 15 suspended students at the University of Minnesota farm school should be reinstated or not.

In the senate, a formal report of a special senate committee was ordered printed and went over until today. The report suggested that the suspended students be given their diplomas within three months without doing extra work.

In the house, Representative John E. Kozlak, Minneapolis, filed notice of debate on a motion to refer the entire matter to the board of regents of the university. #### 18th International Flower Show Opens in New York Today

New York, March 17.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Payne Whitney and a brigade of debutante shock troops, embowered in a wilderness of roses, held sway today in Grand Central Palace, where the 18th International Flower show is blooming.

A casual visitor, unversed in the flora and fauna of the U. S. A., might mistake the show for either a wedding or a funeral. Sweet scents crowd the air; dowagers cluster around rock gardens with the proper air of reverence; the debutantes think it is "just too gorgeous."

Out across the blossoms go the strains of such elegant music as "The Wedding of the Sunshine and the Rose," "Spring, Beautiful Spring" and "Madame Butterfly." The idea is to fit the music to the flowers. Some very beautiful effects are achieved.

Chicago, March 17.—Leo V. Brothers discarded his indifferent attitude today and became active in directing examination of prospective jurors for his trial on charges of murdering Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Brothers' prodding increased the tempo of the morning session for a time but when the noon recess was taken only three jurors had been tentatively accepted by both the state and the defense. The exercise of three peremptory challenges and detailed questioning of prospective jurors delayed progress.

Brothers apparently was responsible for his attorney stressing the $25,000 reward offered by the Tribune for Lingle's slayer, the imposing array of legal talent, and the columns of publicity given to the announcement of the defendant's arrest.

A family reunion under strained circumstances before court opened brought together Leo, his father, Harvey Brothers, Chicago barber, his mother, Mrs. Rose Jensen, Webster Grove, Mo., and his sister, Mrs. Esther Dick, St. Louis.

Harvey Brothers had visited his son a half an hour before court opened. Later, father and son posed affectionately before cameramen. Flashlights were popping when Mrs. Jensen and Mrs. Dick, delayed in reaching court, pushed through the crowded anteroom.

Mrs. Jensen walked directly past her former husband, without a glance at him, and pulled Leo into a corridor for a private greeting, while a deputy sheriff held back the curious.

Mrs. Dick sobbed, and threw her arms around her father. They had not seen each other for almost a year and their welcome was almost hysterical as they clung together.

PIETRO CARDINAL MAFFI DIES AT PISA

Pisa, Italy, March 17.—(U.P.)—Pietro Cardinal Maffi, one of the most prominent members of the sacred college, died today at the age of 78.

Death of the cardinal, who was considered for the papacy upon two occasions, was caused by heart trouble and pneumonia. The news was communicated to Pope Pius and King Victor Emmanuel long close friends of the cardinal.

Cardinal Maffi, who was archbishop of Pisa, was famous as a mathematician and astronomer, and was widely known for his book, "The Map of the Skies Through the Camera."

He was decorated with collar of Annunciation, the highest decoration of Italy, on the same day he officiated at the wedding of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium. He was the first cardinal to receive the honor since 1870, and thereby became a "cousin" of the king.

Cardinal Maffi was an opponent of the fascist government when it was established by Premier Benito Mussolini. A few years after the fascist regime was established he wrote a Lenten pastoral letter attacking the attitude of the government toward the terroristic incidents than so frequent in Italy. The message was not published in Italy because of government censorship.

Madison, Wis., March 17.—(U.P.)—Speaker Charles E. Perry caused expulsion of John E. Chapple, managing editor of the Ashland Daily Press, from the assembly chambers today.

Chapple was present prepared to support his editorial charges against certain progressive assemblymen sponsoring the administration program of public ownership of utilities and allied legislation.

Announcement that Chapple was present and would not have to be subpoenaed to testify in an investigation of his charges of unfair tactics proposed by Assemblyman Moulton E. Goff, prompted the speaker to inquire where Chapple was at that moment.

"Here I am," the editor said from the rear of the assembly chambers. "Get out," the speaker ordered. Chapple protested that he was not a lobbyist, but Perry refused to listen and instructed the sergeant at arms to remove him.

Chapple was present prepared to support his editorial charges against certain progressive assemblymen sponsoring the administration program of public ownership of utilities and allied legislation. Announcement that Chapple was present and would not have to be subpoenaed to testify in an investigation of his charges of unfair tactics proposed by Assemblyman Moulton E. Goff, prompted the speaker to inquire where Chapple was at that moment. "Here I am," the editor said from the rear of the assembly chambers. "Get out," the speaker ordered. Chapple protested that he was not a lobbyist, but Perry refused to listen and instructed the sergeant at arms to remove him.

DE VALERA IN STORY OF PROGRESS IN IRELAND

NATIONAL UNITY AND FREEDOM
THAT WILL FOLLOW SEEN
NEARER

ECONOMIC FORCES HAVE GONE
POWERFULLY TO AID OF NATIONALIST POLICIES
By EAMON DE VALERA
Written for the United Press

Dublin, March 17.—National unity and the freedom that will follow seem nearer this St. Patrick's day than at any time for nine years. Economic forces have gone powerfully to the aid of the traditional nationalist policies. The tide of emigration is being stemmed by the world-wide depression, and greater concentration of the development of our own resources is being thereby compelled. The provision of work at home for the thousands of young men and women who, in other circumstances would seek employment abroad, has now become imperative and the policy of protection for home industry is winning support from all sections of the community. The difficulties of the great industrial countries are teaching us the wisdom of being reasonably self-sufficient and of striving for a balanced economic development.

The northeastern portion of our country, cut off from the rest of Ireland by English policy, is suffering acutely from the loss of overseas markets for the products of its two great industries. Almost one-third of its industrial population is without work, and its people are slowly learning that the markets on which they depended in the past can never be fully recovered. They are beginning to realize that their economic salvation lies in organizing their industries to produce for the Irish rather than for the foreign market.

The prejudices carefully fostered in northeast Ulster will not be overcome in a day or in a year; but it is certain that the trend of economic events is making steadily for Irish unity.

The economic depression has brought new hardships to tens of thousands of our people; the prospects of immediate prosperity are not bright, but the triumph of nationalism and the acceptance of a national economic policy assure the future.

Guidhim beannachta Phadraig, aspal na ngáedheal, do chairbhidh uile Nabh-eireann.

(May the blessings of St. Patrick be with all the exiled sons of Ireland.)

"FRAMING" GIRLS CHARGES PROBED

INTERVENTION OF PRESIDENT
SOUGHT TO PROMOTE LEGIS-LATIVE INQUIRY IN N. Y.

New York, March 17.—(UP)—The intervention of President Hoover was sought today in the fight to authorize a general legislative inquiry into the New York city administration, while officials investigated the death of another witness against vice squad policemen accused of "framing" girls.

W. Kingsland Macy left last night for Washington to ask the president to use his influence on the two Westchester republican state senators whose votes control the passage of the resolution for a city investigation. The senators are Seabury C. Mastick and Walter Wm. Westall, and they have so far opposed the resolution which is pending before the legislature.

At the same time, Dr. John Haynes Holmes, chairman of the city affairs committee, which is pursuing another course toward a city-wide investigation by attempting to force the removal of Mayor Walker, announced that the charges against the mayor would be put in final shape today. They will be delivered to Governor Roosevelt at his convenience.

An autopsy was ordered performed on the body of Georgia Gray, red-haired dancing girl who died Saturday night in Bellevue hospital of an illness diagnosed as pneumonia. She was registered there under the name of Violet Smith and it was not until yesterday that her body was identified by an investigator from the district attorney's office.

Although the pneumonia diagnosis was believed to be correct, Assistant Medical Examiner Thomas A. Gonzales ordered the autopsy when he learned of her identification.

Miss Gray's death is another severe setback to the prosecution of vice squad men by Chief Magistrate Corrigan, already weakened by the disappearance of the stool pigeon, Harry Gibson, who jumped $7,500 bail in Baltimore.

Miss Gray had testified in the trial of Vice Squad Patrolman Leigh Halpern on "framing" charges, and was to have testified against his partner, Daniel Sullivan. She was from Augusta, Ga., and had appeared in the "Vanities," "Hit the Deck" and "Animal Crackers."

4 DEPUTY SHERIFFS WOUNDED IN CLASH WITH 100 STRIKERS

East St. Louis, Ill., March 17.—(UP)—Four special deputy sheriffs were wounded today during a clash with about 100 striking metal workers near Monsanto, Ill. An undetermined number of the strikers were wounded.

The deputies were ambushed by the strikers in a hollow near an abandoned farm house. Five deputies in the automobile left their car after they were fired on and engaged the strikers in a spirited battle.

The deputies were enroute to a ferry landing on the Mississippi river to meet a group of St. Louis laborers and escort them to the Phillips Petroleum tank farm where they had been employed.

Union boilermakers had protested against the importation of outside workers by the Chicago Bridge and Iron company, which is erecting the tanks at Monsanto, Ill., a few miles south of here. When they learned of steps being taken to afford the imported workers protection they laid the trap.

DE VALERA IN STORY OF PROGRESS IN IRELAND

NATIONAL UNITY AND FREEDOM THAT WILL FOLLOW SEEN NEARER

ECONOMIC FORCES HAVE GONE POWERFULLY TO AID OF NATIONALIST POLICIES

By EAMON DE VALERA
Written for the United Press

Dublin, March 17.—National unity and the freedom that will follow seem nearer this St. Patrick's day than at any time for nine years. Economic forces have gone powerfully to the aid of the traditional nationalist policies. The tide of emigration is being stemmed by the world-wide depression, and greater concentration of the development of our own resources is being thereby compelled. The provision of work at home for the thousands of young men and women who, in other circumstances would seek employment abroad, has now become imperative and the policy of protection for home industry is winning support from all sections of the community. The difficulties of the great industrial countries are teaching us the wisdom of being reasonably self-sufficient and of striving for a balanced economic development.

The northeastern portion of our country, cut off from the rest of Ireland by English policy, is suffering acutely from the loss of overseas markets for the products of its two great industries. Almost one-third of its industrial population is without work, and its people are slowly learning that the markets on which they depended in the past can never be fully recovered. They are beginning to realize that their economic salvation lies in organizing their industries to produce for the Irish rather than for the foreign market.

The prejudices carefully fostered in northeast Ulster will not be overcome in a day or in a year; but it is certain that the trend of economic events is making steadily for Irish unity.

The economic depression has brought new hardships to tens of thousands of our people; the prospects of immediate prosperity are not bright, but the triumph of nationalism and the acceptance of a national economic policy assure the future.

Guidhim beannachta Phadraig, aspoil na gaeidheal, do chairbhidh uile Nua-Éireann.

(May the blessings of St. Patrick be with all the exiled sons of Ireland.)

4 DEPUTY SHERIFFS WOUNDED IN CLASH WITH 100 STRIKERS

East St. Louis, Ill., March 17.—(UP)—Four special deputy sheriffs were wounded today during a clash with about 100 striking metal workers near Monsanto, Ill. An undetermined number of the strikers were wounded.

The deputies were ambushed by the strikers in a hollow near an abandoned farm house. Five deputies in the automobile left their car after they were fired on and engaged the strikers in a spirited battle.

The deputies were enroute to a ferry landing on the Mississippi river to meet a group of St. Louis laborers and escort them to the Phillips Petroleum tank farm where they had been employed.

Union boilermakers had protested against the importation of outside workers by the Chicago Bridge and Iron company, which is erecting the tanks at Monsanto, Ill., a few miles south of here. When they learned of steps being taken to afford the imported workers protection they laid the trap.

Alfalfa Day

FARIBAULT, like Brainerd, has recognized the value of alfalfa. Lieutenant Governor Henry Arens will be the principal speaker at the Alfalfa Day program which will be held March 21 at Faribault. More than 700 farmers and their families are expected to attend from all parts of Rice county.

Each township in the county, numbering 14, has selected a candidate to enter in the election for the position of Rice county alfalfa queen. The candidates for queen have already been selected and are now campaigning for votes. Each farm family in the county is entitled to one vote.

The program on Alfalfa Day will begin in the morning, continuing throughout the afternoon at the high school gymnasium, and at noon the Chamber of Commerce in cooperating with this event will give a free lunch to the farm families.

One of the principal events of the afternoon will be the coronation of the queen with Lieutenant Governor Arens in charge of the ceremony. The thirteen girls who fail to win the title of queen will act as attendants as the procession marches into the hall. Last year about 1,500 votes were cast.

Various exhibits, including charts, seed displays and a six foot alfalfa king made entirely of alfalfa will be placed at the rear of the hall.

In Brainerd the Lions club has taken a deep interest in extension of alfalfa culture and has cooperated extensively with the Crow Wing County Farm Bureau. At various times prizes have been awarded in the contests participated in by boys and girls. The various farm clubs have been stimulated to press alfalfa raising. An Alfalfa Day for Brainerd modeled on the lines of Faribault would be a very good thing for city and county.

University Discipline

No school, no university can function properly unless it has the power to enforce discipline among its students. The idea of having some other power act as a court of review affects enforcement of discipline.

The talk of having a legislature confer degrees on suspended students of a branch of the university is an unusual idea. Such a legislative degree has no standing in the scholastic world and would not be accepted by any university or school.

True, a university and its affairs can be made the subject of an investigation by any legislature. A school acting through its functioning head should be given at least the assumption that it knows how to manage its student world, that it knows how to discipline and that it should be backed up in its decrees.

A university has a board of regents, men selected from every section of the state and so forming a thoroughly representative body, fully capable to pass on any extraordinary situation which may develop in the conduct of university and student affairs.

1931 Boys' Week Plans Outlined

UNDER the chairmanship of Walter W. Head, past president of the American Bankers Association, 70 of the most prominent men in America are cooperating to focus public attention upon the boy and upon boy problems through the medium of Boys' Week. Programs for the world-wide observance of this event have been prepared and the date of this year's observance announced for April 25 to May 2.

In the few short years since its inception, Boys' Week has brought about some wonderful results. Although it is not always possible to definitely analyze the spiritual values in such a movement, there is an undoubted awakening of the community, the state, the nation and the world to the recognition of the boy and his problems as something fundamental in the future life of the commonwealth.

The boy of today is confronted with a much more complex world than the day of his father's boyhood, and the sense of responsibility for equipping the boy to meet and conquer his coming environment is growing in the minds of his elders.

The boys of today become the leaders of tomorrow.

Exhibiting Home Made Goods

A MINNESOTA Industrial Exposition, to last for eight days and nights, will officially open the new auditorium now under construction in St. Paul. Dates of the exposition, which will endeavor to display all products manufactured in Minnesota, are from February 5 to 12 inclusive in 1932.

A NEW style of menace on the highways is the man who drives slowly to pass another slow-moving car and thus blocks the highway of the car entitled to its half. The driver of the latter car must apply the brakes and halt his car while the slow moving fellow gets in the clear. Sunday driving on the trunks is also becoming increasingly dangerous on spring-like afternoons, because of the many one-arm drivers. One arm encircles the girl's waist and the other is devoted to guiding the car.

SPRING will soon be here, the lakes will open and the exodus started to the cottages to rejuvenate things, painting home and boat house, repairing boats and docks, burning waste grass, etc. The Twin Cities week end and summer outing people are taking a deep interest in Brainerd and the lakes and will be here in full force this season. The idea of investment and purchase is also gripping them and real estate is expected to move rapidly in the lake region.

THE International Congress of Geology will be held in the Bad Lands for four years, starting this summer, according to word received by Rapid City people. The party will include 50 or 60 experts in geology from various parts of the world.

A. A. STAGG, the grand old man of Chicago University football, has been the guest of honor at the University of South Dakota and Yankton college this week.

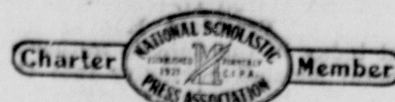

BRAINERD handled the district tournament in basketball exceptionally well. May an equally fine record be made in the conduct of the regional tourney this week.

THE city council is to be commended in properly marking blind streets, thus contributing to safety in motoring.

Warriors Defeat Rangers; Become District Champs

FAST GAME WITH TRADITIONAL FOES ENDS WITH BRAINERD VICTORIOUS, 19-18

THREE YEARS SINCE WINNING DISTRICT THIRD TIME IN HISTORY

For the first time in three years the Warriors earned the right to represent District 25 in the regional tournament by defeating the Rangers from Crosby-Ironton by a 19-18 score.

Coch Dammann's boys functioned as a perfect machine though only two members have ever been through a tournament before. Both teams were in fine condition and the game was full of good basketball.

The Warriors after their victory are in line to meet Moorhead in the regional tournament Thursday night at 8 P. M. If they come through this game, they will meet the winners of the Glenwood-Campbell fray on Friday night for the regional championship.

Brainerd Holds Lead Throughout
Every member on the Brainerd team shared in the scoring. Marshall leading his team mates with six points followed by Foster, Schuety and Gerry Wyle.

The Warrior defense again proved too much for the C-I attacks. The visitors were forced to do most of their heavy scoring from outside the Warrior ranks. Dobravich, guard, sinking several nice ones in rapid succession.

Both teams had a fast offense that took the best of guarding to combat. A record crowd packed the high school gym to the bulging doors and went wild as their team plowed through to victory. Near the end of the game the crowd became hysterical and it took all the lung power of the two husky referees to make their whistles effective.

The Warrior tournament team consisted of Foster, forward; B. Wyle, forward; Marshall, guard; Schuety, guard; G. Wyle, center, who played Saturday night, and Larson, forward; Franks, center, and White, guard, who were reserves.

The C-I line-up was Zauhar, forward; Keeler, forward; Petrabor, forward; Perlich, center; Olson, guard; Dobravich, guard.

OPENING ROUND

Minor Teams Give Strong Opposition
The opening round was the scene of many a thrilling battle. Though there were no upsets, many favorites had their thrones severely shaken beneath them.

Pine River and Pequot, rated weakest of the district entries, gave Little Falls and Aitkin plenty to think about Thursday afternoon. Though Little Falls nosed out Pine River by a 32-26 score, the Pine River boys held the lead until late in the last quarter and many spectators were a little skeptical as to who should have won. Pequot had Aitkin worried but the latter team finally downed them with a 20-13 score.

Staples Games Gives Fans Real Thrills
The evening games also contained many thrills. Crosby-Ironton had fairly easy sailing with the Wadena quint and defeated them by a score of 38-19. But the Brainerd-Staples game gave heart attacks to a full house of rooters. With the score seesawing from one side to the other and landing even at the end of the third quarter, the Warriors were able to defeat the visitors by some desperate playing in the second overtime period.

With the score ending 19 up at the end of the regular game both teams plunged wildly into the overtime period. The first overtime ended with both teams scoring one field goal to make it 21 up.

Just before the gun cracked ending the second overtime period, Foster found the elusive hoop for a nice overhead shot to clinch the game for the Warriors. The score was 23-21. (It is rumored that many ardent fans nursed nervous breakdowns that memorable night).

MISS VANASEK TELLS GIRLS OF TRAVELS

Miss Vanasek gave a very interesting talk to the Netteppew girls last Tuesday evening. The talk was pertaining to her western tour. She had pictures to show so as to help identify the many places of interest. She spoke especially of these places: The Columbia River Drive, Salt Lake City, Hollywood, Chinatown, Seattle, and Denver.

At the business meeting the girls talked of having an international tea. Lillie Casey and Marcella Tavron were appointed to get up the program for the next meeting.

Camp days came back to the minds of the girls as camp songs were sung. Miss Vanasek led the singing. The meeting was closed by singing taps.

B. H. S. FAN GETS SEAT FOR TOURNEY WITH DIFFICULTY

MILLING MOBS LEND HUMOR (?) TO WEEK END BATTLES

Did you ever try to swim up stream? If you have you probably realize that you could never forget that crushed, futile feeling when you're only about half-way to your aim. There's always a time when one almost reaches one's limit and with buzzing head, and aching body which somehow or other seems to still encase your throbbing and painful lungs, one drifts.

Well this is the dizzy, uncertain feeling I experienced last Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the tournament games while trying to approach the ticket windows. I came before seven and still I was at the end of a milling noisy crowd. When people began to fold in behind me I thought I was lucky but, alas! How I wished I were at the end where air and space were plentiful. Before I realized it I had advanced but I hadn't moved my feet an inch. In fact, they weren't even on the ground. I seemed to be gaining elevation rapidly so I stuck out tentatively with one foot and struck a step. My feet were three steps ahead of my body all the rest of the way; and I rode bumpily on the surging people who pushed heartily from the rear. Then I gained the door and got caught and almost crushed. At last I was again picked up and was in a terrible whirl till somebody said, "Ticket, please!" Then the lad behind me gave me such an enthusiastic incentive that I fairly flew up the stairs and landed fairly upright on a vacant seat, which another had chosen for himself but hadn't taken possession of yet. Take it from me, yelling after that was easy compared with the entry.

Seniors Meet to View Finished Class Memorial

Last Tuesday morning a Senior meeting was called in the auditorium. Mrs. Heald's painting was set up on the stage to be criticized by the class. Different colored lights were shone on it. All the members "ohing and ahing" their admiration. No criticisms or suggestions were offered by anyone. Everyone thinks it is perfect—"so realistic" to quote someone. Only additional touches will be added by Mrs. Heald. The class is very proud of this painting and hopes it will meet with as much enthusiasm when presented to the school.

Today is St. Patrick's Day — not much excitement and not very much green—Mr. Ford flaunts a green tie that appears only on the birthday of the Irish saint. Jim Garvey wears the flag of Old Erin, and Frances Reese has a green bow on her hand.

Coach Woock's Rangers placed themselves in the finals Friday night by defeating Little Falls and Aitkin respectively.

The Warriors had things their own way with Little Falls, defeating them by a 38-18 score. Woock's Rangers found it a little harder going with Aitkin and only the points piled up in an early lead carried them to a 23-22 victory.

Little Falls was entirely unable to cope with the fast working Warriors who stored up an early lead which they held throughout the contest.

The Warriors' airtight defensive work through the game made it a tough proposition for the down river quint.

Foster was high point man of the evening, scoring seven field goals and one free throw to net 15 points.

SPORTRAITS

Says a little girl when the first half was over Saturday night, "Well if we win the game, Miss Tornstrom will have a nice paper weight for her desk."

Notice that the referees, Halzer and Cleve, had classy sweaters on for the final game. C-I thought the stripes interfered with the vision of the players.

Everybody appreciated Andrew Stuck's sweet tones over the radio? Keep you guessing what he was saying and that did relieve the tension a little.

Competition—not only in basketball, but a music. Never heard any hands sound so different—dulcet music from Brainerd and blaring bass from Staples, more of a blending in Crosby and Wadena's all noise.

Ask Miss Taylor how she placated the basketball gods and won the tournament—and look at her left ear.

Not how the other schools rose to sing their school songs as their teams entered?

Tumblers' Antics Amuse Crowd; Relieve Tension

Mr. Squier must know psychology. If ever a crowd of almost two thousand needed something to relieve the tension—Saturday at 9:30 was that time. The crowd has got into the habit of expecting some pretty work from the tumbling team and were more than surprised at the heights to which the boys climbed. In addition to the usual somersaults of varied styles, the smaller boys moved in and out on the mats, and then prepared for the climax in which nine boys of varying heights and weights constructed a pyramid, topped by Orville Olson, who bravely leaped from the peak of the pyramid into the waiting arms of Julius Knudsen and Mr. Squier.

On Friday evening the team built up a different type of pyramid on which Lee Clarkson leaped and dived and turned to gaze upon a flattened mass of humans who collapsed in laughable fashion after Lee had somersaulted.

These are the players: Julius Knudsen, Loren Brandt, Bill Olson, Lee Clarkson, Donald Hanson, Walter Kurz, Knute Preston, Orville Olson, Drexel Geist, Russell Nyland, and Lyle Mayo.

ALUMNI

According to the Minneapolis Journal, Winel Barnes, former B. H. S. basketball man, grad of '28, has a very good chance to make the U. of M. basketball team next year.

Alice Peterson, '30, is fully recovered and intends to return to the university for the spring quarter.

Russell Nelson and Dick Ebert, '30, spent the week-end in Brainerd.

The university spring vacation starts the latter part of the week, and we'll have many alumni here then. We hope to see them at the regional games to support the old Alma Mater.

French Club Learns Translations of Songs

Luncheon was served in the Cafeteria Tuesday to the French club members after which the usual meeting was held in Mr. Penrose's room. Several very good translations of French poems into rhyming English by the French students were read. "America" was sung in French by the members and Miss Taylor read her translation of "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" which will be sung by the club at a future meeting.

SKOOL SKANDLE

Next Sunday night the Girls Glee club is going to sing a cantata at the First Baptist church. See you in church, girls.

Today is St. Patrick's Day. Are you wearing green?

Four boys from Wadena visited Mr. Penrose's sixth period class last Friday. Hold your hearts, girls.

The Senior memorial, a painting by Mrs. Heald, has a lovely basket of blueberries pictured in the foreground. We wonder if the Indians liked blueberry pie in those days.

The new district trophy stands in the trophy case beside the old bronze athlete that we won three years ago and shows that he went through the fire. Two track trophies are there, too. We hope to have more of those by June.

TWENTY SENIORS ELECTED MEMBERS OF NAT'L HONORARY SCHOLASTIC SOCIETY

Rev. Patterson Tells Hi-Y of Bible Character

After a short business meeting led by Mr. Peterson the Senior Chapter of the Hi-Y II was addressed by Rev. Patterson who summarized the life of Moses in a very interesting fashion.

Rev. Patterson stated that the Bible was the foundation of man and that no other thing could substitute for it. Then in a brief but clear and interesting manner he related the works of Moses and his life's history.

Plans for a joint Hi-Y parent-son banquet were discussed and a committee consisting of Allan McKay, Bruce Paine, Gerald Olson, and Howard Zander was appointed to arrange for the banquet which points to be a huge success.

CAPTAIN SCHUETY PRESENTS TROPHY TO HIGH SCHOOL

TEAM, IDOLS OF SCHOOL, LAUD- ED AT VICTORY FEST

Excitement reigned at the school on Monday morning—faces brightened as Thomas Heller entered for the absence slips. What? No notice of a pep fest? What's the matter with the school, anyway? Despair descended. Lessons were long and wearisome. What's that? Two bells? Joy reigned. Everyone surged to the auditorium. Lights on, but nobody appeared on the stage.

Enter—Mr. Cobb, who talked about the tournament that was and the tournament that is to be, with a plea for exceeding great courtesy this week.

Enter—Mr. Dammann, with a package under his arm. As usual, he spoke with modesty and humor, and then he told the boys and the school to go out and get. What if Moorhead does have a wonderful team? So does Crosby-Ironton. Up and at 'em, boys.

Three cheers for Mr. Dammann—given with "yinyer and entiosiasm."

Enter—the team—amid wild applause! Speeches from all of them. Brief and modest and hopeful of the future—the immediate future of Thursday and Friday. Captain Schuety presented the trophy to the school in a few well chosen words. The trophy accepted by Miss Tornstrom who expressed her joy at getting the opportunity after so long a wait. She then told them that the best service they could render the school and the team was to have "business as usual" and surround the team with "confident calm."

Enter—the cheer leaders—and if you think they cheered at the Tournament you should have heard them celebrate winning the Tournament!

On Second Thought

There was a burst of laughter from the usually quiet corner of the club room. One red faced man had proclaimed that he wasn't afraid of anything and another gentleman had dared him to go up in an airplane. He agreed readily and protested violently against the jeers of the other members. After they had agreed on the time, he went home for a good night's sleep.

The next morning he found breakfast waiting for him and the morning Gazette on the table. He glanced casually over the head lines. Something was wrong. He seemed to be violently ill. He broke out in a cold sweat and cold chills ran up and down his back. He shuddered like a fat man that has fallen through the ice. He couldn't do it. It wouldn't be fair to his wife and children to risk his life that way. Didn't the Gazette say that three people had been killed because the controls had failed to work? He had to do something or the boys at the club would laugh at him. He half ran and half stumbled to the telephone and as he slumped down in the chair he hoarsely gave the operator a number. While he was waiting for the contact to be made, the roar of a passing airplane caused him to groan aloud. When the connection was made he conversed in lowered tones with another party.

That afternoon all were on time and over near the first hangar was his family doctor. As he was climbing into his airplane the doctor told him he couldn't go up because of his weak heart. A few days later the doctor received a box of cypars and a twenty-five dollar bill. There was also a card of thanks which the doctor acknowledged with a slight nod and a smile of understanding although the card was unsigned.

ROGER NELSON,
English II.

MEMBERSHIP OF CHAPTER IS DISTINCTION MUCH COVETED

One of the outstanding honors to be gained by a student in the Senior year of high school is the membership to the National Honor Society. This is a national society for secondary schools. It was organized by educators who felt the need of recognition and incentive to scholarship.

The first scholarship honor society (Phi Beta Sigma) was founded in 1900 by Dr. William B. Owen of the Chicago Normal College. The movement has spread and at present about 1,000 high schools have established chapters. These societies sprang up in widely different sections independent of the others. In 1921 it was decided to branch them together and make a national society. The four fundamental virtues which the founders believed most useful to the society are character, leadership, scholarship and service. The constitution lays down general rules regarding officers, eligibility, etc., but leaves the details of the government to each chapter. As stated in the constitution, local organizations consist of chapters in the secondary schools of the U. S. supported standards equal to those of schools accredited by such agencies as North Central Association.

Service is interpreted as willingness to help in school matters, showing courtesy to visitors, represent school, uphold scholarship, and maintain the school loyalty.

Leadership is interpreted to mean showing initiative in classroom activities which lead to higher scholarship for all, promote any high school activities, or hold responsible positions, contribute new ideas and exert a fine leadership.

A student may gain recognition in character by meeting his school obligation, showing honest spirit in class work and spirit of sincerity toward his teachers and classmates, helping rid the school of bad environment, upholding Christian ideals of school, and by demonstrating qualities such as honesty, reliability, and morality.

High Scholarship Necessary
Pupils who are eligible to membership must have a scholarship rank in the first third of their respective graduating classes.

The principal of the high school gives a copy of the list of names to thirteen members of the faculty. They with the principal make the selections. Students are given tests and they vote but final choice is made by the faculty.

A ritual is held. The members purchase emblems. These chapters do much active service in lines of helping the school or individual students. Out of the 43 seniors in Brainerd high school 20 were chosen as members. They might be called representative seniors which correspond to those of the U. of M.

Those chosen are: Arden Miller, Jean Cass, Helen Sheets, Darrel Wadsworth, Bernice Steinfeldt, Alice Nolan, Janet Kampmann, Elizabeth Irvine, Ray Wareing, Kenneth Stinson, Louise Clausen, Mary Hawkins, Arline Hagberg, Stuart Patterson, Carl Holvig, Marie Hoffbauer, Vernon Marshall, Rose Johnson, Maleda Kleinschmidt and Fay Rosina.

Central—Give me 6007 Main—Wot? Say she's got some line. It's always in use. Oh well. Guess I'll call central 'an see if she's got any new numbers. No, she liable to think I'm gettin' fresh or just a bad egg in my second childhood 5210 Sunnyside. Yeah, but it it's the wrong number, give me shadylane. Hello, Sam? Yeah, how's the boy? Wot? Out of a job again? Say, you're as bad as a one-armed paper hanger with the seven years' itch. You're giving up surgery? Why? Oh, too much inside work eh? Well, I don't blame yuh. It's a ticklish job all right.

How's the Mrs? What, sick? How come? Oh, you're doctoring her. Well, no wonder she wants you to give up the surgery business. I hear she's learning to drive. Is it so? What? She wrecked it and now you're broke? Why I thought you had lots of dough? She tried to stop the car and couldn't—Yes, go on—then you told her if she couldn't hit something cheap and she didn't hear you. What a shame!

Oh say, how about those boots I lent you. What? They aren't mine any more? How come? You traded them for a pair of your own. Why you oh, all right.

What am I doing? Well, I am going golfing. Oh, yeah, I'm full of enthusiasm, all right. I had a very enthusiastic dish for dinner. What was it? Hash. You don't? Well the cook put all she had into it, that's why.

Well I gotta go. My Ford's at the door; I hear it knocking. Goodbye. (click.)

Programs for the world-wide observance of this event have been prepared and the date of this year's observance announced for April 25 to May 2.

In the few short years since its inception, Boys' Week has brought about some wonderful results. Although it is not always possible to definitely analyze the spiritual values in such a movement, there is an undoubted awakening of the community, the state, the nation and the world to the recognition of the boy and his problems as something fundamental in the future life of the commonwealth.

The boy of today is confronted with a much more complex world than the day of his father's boyhood, and the sense of responsibility for equipping the boy to meet and conquer his coming environment is growing in the minds of his elders.

The boys of today become the leaders of tomorrow.

Exhibiting Home Made Goods

A MINNESOTA Industrial Exposition, to last for eight days and nights, will officially open the new auditorium now under construction in St. Paul. Dates of the exposition, which will endeavor to display all products manufactured in Minnesota, are from February 5 to 12 inclusive in 1932.

A NEW style of menace on the highways is the man who drives slowly to pass another slow-moving car and thus blocks the highway of the car entitled to its half. The driver of the latter car must apply the brakes and halt his car while the slow moving fellow gets in the clear. Sunday driving on the trunks is also becoming increasingly dangerous on spring-like afternoons, because of the many one-arm drivers. One arm encircles the girl's waist and the other is devoted to guiding the car.

SPRING will soon be here, the lakes will open and the exodus started to the cottages to rejuvenate things, painting home and boat house, repairing boats and docks, burning waste grass, etc. The Twin Cities week end and summer outing people are taking a deep interest in Brainerd and the lakes and will be here in full force this season. The idea of investment and purchase is also gripping them and real estate is expected to move rapidly in the lake region.

THE International Congress of Geology will be held in the Bad Lands for four years, starting this summer, according to word received by Rapid City people. The party will include 50 or 60 experts in geology from various parts of the world.

A. A. STAGG, the grand old man of Chicago University football, has been the guest of honor at the University of South Dakota and Yankton college this week.

BRAINERD handled the district tournament in basketball exceptionally well. May an equally fine record be made in the conduct of the regional tourney this week.

THE city council is to be commended in properly marking blind streets, thus contributing to safety in motoring.

Warriors Defeat Rangers; Become District Champs

FAST GAME WITH TRADITIONAL FOES ENDS WITH BRAINERD VICTORIOUS, 19-18

THREE YEARS SINCE WINNING DISTRICT: THIRD TIME IN HISTORY

For the first time in three years the Warriors earned the right to represent District 25 in the regional tournament by defeating the Rangers from Crosby-Ironton by a 19-18 score.

Coach Dammann's boys functioned as a perfect machine though only two members have ever been through a tournament before. Both teams were in fine condition and the game was full of good basketball.

The Warriors after their victory are in line to meet Moorhead in the regional tournament Thursday night at 8 P. M. If they come through this game, they will meet the winners of the Glenwood-Campbell fray on Friday night for the regional championship.

Brainerd Holds Lead Throughout
Every member on the Brainerd team shared in the scoring. Marshall leading his team mates with six points followed by Foster, Schuety and Gerry Wygle.

The Warrior defense again proved too much for the C-I attacks. The visitors were forced to do most of their heavy scoring from outside the Warrior ranks. Dobravich, guard, sinking several nice ones in rapid succession.

Both teams had a fast offense that took the best of guarding to combat.

A record crowd packed the high school gym to the bulging doors and went wild as their team plowed through to victory. Near the end of the game the crowd became hysterical and it took all the lung power of the two husky referees to make their whistles effective.

The Warrior tournament team consisted of Foster, forward; B. Wygle, forward; Marshall, guard; Schuety, guard; G. Wygle, center, who played Saturday night, and Larson, forward; Franks, center, and White, guard, who were reserves.

The C-I line-up was Zauhar, forward; Keeler, forward; Petrabor, forward; Perlich, center; Olson, guard; Dobravich, guard.

OPENING ROUND

Minor Teams Give Strong Opposition
The opening round was the scene of many a thrilling battle. Though there were no upsets, many favorites had their thrones severely shaken beneath them.

Pine River and Pequot, rated weakest of the district entries, gave Little Falls and Aitkin plenty to think about Thursday afternoon. Though Little Falls nosed out Pine River by a 32-26 score, the Pine River boys held the lead until late in the last quarter and many spectators were a little skeptical as to who should have won. Pequot had Aitkin worried but the latter team finally downed them with a 20-13 score.

Staples Games Gives Fans Real Thrills
The evening games also contained many thrills. Crosby-Ironton had fairly easy sailing with the Wadena quint and defeated them by a score of 38-19.

But the Brainerd-Staples game gave heart attacks to a full house of rooters. With the score seasawing from one side to the other and landing even at the end of the third quarter, the Warriors were able to defeat the visitors by some desperate playing in the second overtime period.

With the score ending 19 up at the end of the regular game both teams plunged wildly into the overtime period. The first overtime ended with both teams scoring one field goal to make it 21 up.

Just before the gun cracked ending the second overtime period, Foster found the elusive hoop for a nice overhand shot to clinch the game for the Warriors. The score was 23-21. (It is rumored that many ardent fans nursed nervous breakdowns that memorable night).

MISS VANASEK TELLS GIRLS OF TRAVELS

Miss Vanasek gave a very interesting talk to the Netteppew girls last Tuesday evening. The talk was pertaining to her western tour. She had pictures to show so as to help identify the many places of interest. She spoke especially of these places: The Columbia River Drive, Salt Lake City, Hollywood, Chinatown, Seattle, and Denver.

At the business meeting the girls talked of having an international tea. Lillie Casey and Marcella Tarron were appointed to get up the program for the next meeting.

Camp days came back to the minds of the girls as camp songs were sung. Miss Vanasek led the singing. The meeting was closed by singing taps.

B. H. S. FAN GETS SEAT FOR TOURNEY WITH DIFFICULTY

MILLING MOBS LEND HUMOR (?) TO WEEK END BATTLES

Did you ever try to swim up stream? If you have you probably realize that you could never forget that crushed, futile feeling when you're only about half-way to your aim. There's always a time when one almost reaches one's limit and with buzzing head, and aching body which somehow or other seems to still encase your throbbing and painful lungs, one drifts.

Well this is the dizzy, uncertain feeling I experienced last Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the tournament games while trying to approach the ticket windows. I came before seven and still I was at the end of a milling noisy crowd. When people began to fold in behind me I thought I was lucky, but alas! How I wished I were at the end where air and space were plentiful. Before I realized it I had advanced but I hadn't moved my feet an inch. In fact, they weren't even on the ground. I seemed to be gaining elevation rapidly so I stuck out tentatively with one foot and struck a step. My feet were three steps ahead of my body all the rest of the way; and I rode bumpily on the surging people who pushed heartily from the rear. Then I gained the door and got caught and almost crushed. At last I was again picked up and was in a terrible whirl till somebody said, "Ticket, please!" Then the lad behind me gave me such an enthusiastic incentive that I fairly flew up the stairs and landed fairly upright on a vacant seat, which another had chosen for himself but hadn't taken possession of yet. Take it from me, yelling after that was easy compared with the entry.

Seniors Meet to View
Finished Class Memorial
Last Tuesday morning a Senior meeting was called in the auditorium. Mrs. Heald's painting was set up on the stage to be criticized by the class. Different colored lights were shone on it. All the members "ohing and ahing" their admiration. No criticisms or suggestions were offered by anyone. Everyone thinks it is perfect—"so realistic" to quote someone. Only additional touches will be added by Mrs. Heald. The class is very proud of this painting and hopes it will meet with as much enthusiasm when presented to the school.

Today is St. Patrick's Day — not much excitement and not very much green—Mr. Ford flaunts a green tie that appears only on the birthday of the Irish saint. Jim Garvey wears the flag of Old Erin, and Frances Reese has a green bow on her hand.

Coach Woeck's Rangers placed themselves in the finals Friday night by defeating Little Falls and Aitkin respectively.

The Warriors had things their own way with Little Falls, defeating them by a 38-18 score. Woeck's Rangers found it a little harder going with Aitkin and only the points piled up in an early lead carried them to a 23-22 victory.

Little Falls was entirely unable to cope with the fast working Warriors who stored up an early lead which they held throughout the contest.

The Warriors' airtight defensive work through the game made it a tough proposition for the down river quint.

Foster was high point man of the evening, scoring seven field goals and one free throw to net 15 points.

SPORTRAITS

Says a little girl when the first half was over Saturday night, "Well if we win the game, Miss Tornstrom will have a nice paper weight for her desk."

Notice that the referees, Halzer and Cleve, had classy sweaters on for the final game. C-I thought the stripes interfered with the vision of the players.

Everybody appreciated Andrew Stucki's sweet tones over the radio? Kept you guessing what he was saying and that did relieve the tension a little.

Competition—not only in basketball, but a music. Never heard any hands sound so different—dullest music from Brainerd and blaring bass from Staples, more of a blending in Crosby and Wadena's all noisy.

Ask Miss Taylor how she placated the basketball gods and won the tournament—and look at her left ear.

Notice how the other schools rose to sing their school song as their teams entered?

Tumblers' Antics Amuse Crowd; Relieve Tension

Mr. Squier must know psychology. If ever a crowd of almost two thousand needed something to relieve the tension—Saturday at 9:30 was that time. The crowd has got into the habit of expecting some pretty work from the tumbling team and were more than surprised at the heights to which the boys climbed. In addition to the usual somersaults of varied styles, the smaller boys moved in and out on the mats, and then prepared for the climax in which nine boys of varying heights and weights constructed a pyramid, topped by Orville Olson, who bravely leaped from the peak of the pyramid into the waiting arms of Julius Knudsen and Mr. Squier.

On Friday evening the team built up a different type of pyramid in which Lee Clarkson leaped and dived and turned to gaze upon a flattened mass of humans who collapsed in laughable fashion after Lee had somersaulted.

ALUMNI

According to the Minneapolis Journal, Winel Barnes, former B. H. S. basketball man, grad of '28, has a good chance to make the U. of M. basketball team next year.

Alice Peterson, '30, is fully recovered and intends to return to the university for the spring quarter.

Lois Cook is recovering from a recent operation.

Russell Nelson and Dick Ebert, '30, spent the week-end in Brainerd.

The university spring vacation starts the latter part of the week, and we'll have many alumni here then. We hope to see them at the regional games to support the old Alma Mater.

French Club Learns Translations of Songs

Luncheon was served in the Cafeteria Tuesday to the French club members after which the usual meeting was held in Mr. Penrose's room. Several very good translations of French poems into rhyming English by the French students were read. "America" was sung in French by the members and Miss Taylor read her translation of "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" which will be sung by the club at a future meeting.

SKOOL SKANDLE

Next Sunday night the Girls Glee club is going to sing a cantata at the First Baptist church. See you in church, girls.

Today is St. Patrick's Day. Are you wearing green?

Four boys from Wadena visited Mr. Penrose's sixth period class last Friday. Hold your hearts, girls.

The Senior memorial, a painting by Mrs. Heald, has a lovely basket of blueberries pictured in the foreground. We wonder if the Indians liked blueberry pie in those days.

The new district trophy stands in the trophy case beside the old bronze athlete that we won three years ago and shows that he went through the fire. Two track trophies are there, too. We hope to have more of those by June.

TWENTY SENIORS ELECTED MEMBERS OF NAT'L HONORARY SCHOLASTIC SOCIETY

Rev. Patterson Tells Hi-Y of Bible Character

After a short business meeting led by Mr. Peterson the Senior Chapter of the Hi-Y II was addressed by Rev. Patterson who summarized the life of Moses in a very interesting fashion.

Rev. Patterson stated that the Bible was the foundation of man and that no other thing could substitute for it. Then in a brief but clear and interesting manner he related the works of Moses and his life's history.

Plans for a joint Hi-Y parent-son banquet were discussed and a committee consisting of Allan McKay, Bruce Paine, Gerald Olson, and Howard Zander was appointed to arrange for the banquet which points to be a huge success.

CAPTAIN SCHUETY PRESENTS TROPHY TO HIGH SCHOOL

TEAM, IDOLS OF SCHOOL, LAUD- ED AT VICTORY FEST

Excitement reigned at the school on Monday morning—faces brightened as Thomas Heller entered for the absence slips. What? No notice of a pep fest? What's the matter with the school, anyway? Despair descended. Lessons were long and wearisome. What's that? Two bells? Joy reigned. Everyone surged to the auditorium. Lights on, but nobody appeared on the stage.

Enter—Mr. Cobb, who talked about the tournament that was and the tournament that is to be, with a plea for exceeding great courtesy this week.

Enter—Mr. Dammann, with a package under his arm. As usual, he spoke with modesty and humor, and then unwrapped the regional trophy, which he told the boys and the school to go out and get. What if Moorhead does have a wonderful team? So does Crosby-Ironton. Up and at 'em, boys.

Three cheers for Mr. Dammann—given with "yinyer and entosiasm."

Enter—the team—amid wild applause! Speeches from all of them. Brief and modest and hopeful of the future—the immediate future of Thursday and Friday. Captain Schuety presented the trophy to the school in a few well chosen words. The trophy accepted by Miss Tornstrom who expressed her joy at getting the opportunity after so long a wait. She then told them that the best service they could render the school and the team was to have "business as usual" and surround the team with "confident calm."

Enter—the cheer leaders—and if you think they cheered at the Tournament you should have heard them celebrate winning the Tournament!

On Second Thought

There was a burst of laughter from the usually quiet corner of the club room. One red faced man had proclaimed that he wasn't afraid of anything and another gentleman had dared him to go up in an airplane. He agreed readily and protested violently against the jeers of the other members. After they had agreed on the time, he went home for a good night's sleep.

The next morning he found breakfast waiting for him and the morning Gazette on the table. He glanced casually over the head lines. Something was wrong. He seemed to be violently ill. He broke out in a cold sweat and cold chills ran up and down his back. He shuddered like a fat man that has fallen through the ice. He couldn't do it. It wouldn't be fair to his wife and children to risk his life that way. Didn't the Gazette say that three people had been killed because the controls had failed to work? He had to do something or the boys at the club would laugh at him. He half ran and half stumbled to the telephone and as he slumped down in the chair he hoarsely gave the operator a number.

While he was waiting for the contact to be made, the roar of a passing airplane caused him to groan aloud. When the connection was made he conversed in lowered tones with another party.

That afternoon all were on time and over near the first hangar was his family doctor. As he was climbing into his airplane the doctor told him he couldn't go up because of his weak heart. A few days later the doctor received a box of cypars and a twenty-five dollar bill. There was also a card of thanks which the doctor acknowledged with a slight nod and a smile of understanding although the card was unsigned.

ROGER NELSON,
English II.

MEMBERSHIP OF CHAPTER IS DISTINCTION MUCH COVETED

One of the outstanding honors to be gained by a student in the Senior year of high school is the membership to the National Honor Society. This is a national society for secondary schools. It was organized by educators who felt the need of recognition and incentive to scholarship.

The first scholarship honor society (Phi Beta Sigma) was founded in 1900 by Dr. William E. Owen of the Chicago Normal College. The movement has spread and at present about 1,000 high schools have established chapters. These societies sprang up in widely different sections independent of the others. In 1921 it was decided to branch them together and make a national society. The four fundamental virtues which the founders believed most useful to the society are character, leadership, scholarship and service. The constitution lays down general rules regarding officers, eligibility, etc., but leaves the details of the government to each chapter. As stated in the constitution, local organizations consist "of chapters in the secondary schools of the U. S. supported standards equal to those of schools accredited by such agencies as North Central Association."

Service is interpreted as willingness to help in school matters, showing courtesy to visitors, represent school, uphold scholarship, and maintain the school loyalty.

Leadership is interpreted to mean showing initiative in classroom activities which lead to higher scholarship for all, promote any high school activities, or hold responsible positions, contribute new ideas and exert a fine leadership.

A student may gain recognition in character by meeting his school obligation, showing honest spirit in class work and spirit of sincerity toward his teachers and classmates, helping rid the school of bad environment, upholding Christian ideals of school, and by demonstrating qualities such as honesty, reliability, and morality.

High Scholarship Necessary
Pupils who are eligible to membership must have a scholarship rank in the first third of their respective graduating classes.

The principal of the high school gives a copy of the list of names to thirteen members of the faculty. They with the principal make the selections. Students are given tests and they vote but final choice is made by the faculty.

A ritual is held. The members purchase emblems. These chapters do much active service in lines of helping the school or individual students.

Out of the 43 seniors in Brainerd high school 20 were chosen as members. They might be called representative seniors which correspond to those of the U. of M.

Those chosen are: Arden Miller, Jean Cass, Helen Sheets, Darrold Wadsworth, Bernice Steinfeldt, Alice Nolan, Janet Kampmann, Elizabeth Irvine, Ray Wareing, Kenneth Stimson, Louise Clausen, Mary Hawkins, Arline Hagberg, Stuart Patterson, Carl Holvig, Marie Hoffbauer, Vernon Marshall, Rose Johnson, Maleda Kleinschmidt and Fay Rosina.

PAT'S PATTER

Central—Give me 6007 Main—Wot? Say she's got some line. It's always in use. Oh well. Guess I'll call central an' see if she's got any new numbers. No, she liable to think I'm gettin' fresh or just a bad egg in my second childhood 5210 Sunnyside. Yeah, but if it's the wrong number give me shadyane. Hello, Sam? Yeah, how's the boy? Wot? Out of a job again? Say, you're as bad as a one-armed paper hanger with the seven years' itch. You're giving up surgery? Why? Oh, to much inside work eh? Well, I don't blame you. Its a ticklish job all right.

How's the Mrs? What, sick? How come? Oh, you're doctoring her. Well, no wonder she wants you to give up the surgery business. I hear she's learning to drive. Is it so? What? She wrecked it and now you're broke? Why I thought you had lots of dough? She tried to stop the car and couldn't—Yes, go on—then you told her if she couldn't to hit something cheap and she didn't hear you. What a shame!

Oh say, how about those boots I lent you. What? They aren't mine any more? How come? You traded them for a pair of your own. Why you oh, all right.

What am I doing? Well, I am going golfing. Oh, yeah, I'm full of enthusiasm, all right. I had a very enthusiastic dish for dinner. What was it? Hash. You don't? Well the cook put all she had into it, that's why.

Well I gotta go. My Ford's at the door; I hear it knocking. Goodbye. (click.)

RELIEF STORM SEWER, OIL ORDINANCE DEAD

Sewer Not Wanted While Ordinance Too Lengthy and Technical, Council Feels

ONLY TWO FAVOR THEM

Alderman Hall Charged Oil Interests Intimidated Council to Kill Dyrking

The proposed relief storm sewer for downtown Brainerd and the proposed ordinance governing the storage of gasoline, oil and other inflammable liquids, are apparently doomed today, the former and voted against the second reading of the ordinance at last night's session.

Both issues had been discussed by the city council for months. The supporters of each had dwelled down to two last night.

The proposed oil ordinance was killed after Alderman W. J. Hall scored oil interests and others complained that the ordinance was "so lengthy and so technical" that it would require six months of study before they could cast an intelligent vote on the issue.

Alderman Hall after asserting that oil interests were dictating to the council, bluffing the council, intimidating the members, stated he would not vote in favor of the ordinance because the vital clause of the ordinance, that requiring the diking of tanks, had been stricken from it.

Only the mover and seconder of the motion to have the second reading of the ordinance in its amended form, with the diking clause stricken, voted in favor of the reading. They were Aldermen W. J. Lyons and Ernest Ritari.

Opposing the proposed ordinance were Aldermen H. W. Cregar, Chris Elvig, W. J. Hall, F. B. Johnson, Elmer Lee and V. E. Quansstrom.

Aldermen Hall and Ritari were the only members of the council to favor the proposed relief sewer.

The others opposed the sewer because residential petitioners had asked that the sewer be not constructed this year while no petition was received from merchants of downtown Brainerd asking for the sewer.

Alderman Cregar said that the $25,000 sewer would be a hardship on shop workmen living in the area affected.

Alderman Hall said that downtown Brainerd merchants were willing to pay for the sewer.

President V. E. Quansstrom suggested that if a relief sewer was needed up town that the merchants should pay for it. He thought it unfair that others in the city should be assessed for it.

Alderman Lyons suggested that a move be started to get the merchants to petition for a relief storm sewer if they desired it.

Alderman Johnson stated in voting for the motion that the desires of the petitioners be granted and the sewer not constructed this year: "Let those damaged by water sue the city."

Alderman Hall in his discussion before the vote on the gas ordinance compared oil interests with octopuses, asserted they were working their men under slave conditions.

"Why should we be dictated to by the oil interests. They tried to intimidate us. Why should they not dyke when they know it would be a benefit to every citizen in Brainerd. It is no hardship to them. 'Why did you let those fellows bluff you,' a St. Cloud man told me. When you strike out diking you kill the vital part of the ordinance," he said.

Cost Distribution Asked
City Engineer R. T. Campbell was instructed to bring in a report of the cost and distribution of cost of the proposed Southeast Brainerd drainage ditch. He had formerly informed the council that all taxes were paid on the land affected by the proposed sewer and estimated the value of the property at $25 an acre. The Holland Estate owns a large portion of the land which the ditch will serve. He estimated the cost at approximately $4,000.

City Clerk E. T. Fleener reported that the State Auditor's draft of $1,619.12 covering expenses of the city audit would be taken up soon.

On motion of Aldermen Ernest Ritari and W. J. Hall the council authorized the purchasing committee to buy 300 feet of hose at 65 cents a foot for the use of the city street department in flushing of sewers.

Alderman Lyons said that the street and sewer fund was in good condition, that at the present time there was $5,000 in it.

The city engineer was instructed to repair the culvert at the corner of Quince and 12th streets. It was recommended by Alderman Ritari and supported by Alderman Johnson.

On motion of Aldermen Ritari and Cregar City Engineer Campbell was instructed to erect a cable guard rail on Laurel street between 13th and 14th street, south of the Northern Pacific shops.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS REVUE BIG SUCCESS

Many Nationalities Represented in Costumes, Songs and Dances at High School

BAND, GLEE CLUB ATTRACT

Attractive Costumes of Various Countries Lend Grace and Charm to Event

One of the loveliest programs of the year was held in the high school auditorium last night to a goodly sized crowd who viewed an "International Revue" which included 17 nationalities. It was sponsored by the Otyokwa and Akipsaya Camp Fire girls under the direction of Miss Fiergola and Miss Stendal, guardians.

The attractive costumes of the various countries represented lent atmosphere to an otherwise lovely affair with its singing, dancing, speaking, and instrumental music. With the Legion Auxiliary band in full array and the appearance of the renowned Swedish Glee club, success was assured.

The "International Revue" in order of its appearance in the program was as follows:

Besides helping a good cause for Camp Fire every one had an enjoyable hour and a half, with a representative of his nationality appearing before him, often in duplicate dress, but always in the same language or interpretation.

The sponsors deserve much credit for the "Revue" over which not only for the way they put the "International Revue" but also a birthday honor.

J. A. McCOLL, HALF CENTURY IN CITY

Brainerd's Business Section Then Was Stands of Virgin Jack Pine

Fifty years ago yesterday, J. A. McColl, 218 North 7th street stepped off a train at Brainerd from Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. The depot was located near the river and there was two and a half feet of snow on the ground.

Mr. McColl viewed a small business section at that time, virgin jack pine trees where the main business district of Brainerd now stands and streets of sand.

The arrival established himself in business as photographer, later branching out into the confectionery business. He retired two years ago.

ANGEL HOME FIRE CAUSES $1,000 LOSS

Flames of Unknown Origin Sweep Through Basement, Checked by Firemen

An estimated damage of $1,000 resulted from a fire that swept through the basement at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Angel, 216 Chippewa street Monday afternoon. The loss is covered by insurance.

The fire started from unknown origin while Mrs. Angel was not at home. The flames were checked by the Brainerd fire department before they reached the living quarters, although some damage was done by smoke.

The alarm was turned in by telephone from a neighbor's house.

Other People's Opinions

Communications are not to exceed 300 words. All must be signed, and will be published with name of writer.

To the readers and others of The Dispatch:

I was with a party driving through the woods below Garrison Tuesday, and was told there had been many logs cut this winter, and I saw the evidence of one on my son's place on Holtz Lake where there had been a nice big Norway pine. There is not anything now but the stump and top. If there is a law that people have to get a permit to cut logs, why aren't there some timber cruisers to see to it the same as a game warden. Fish can multiply, but when a nice tree is slaughtered, nothing can ever take its place in our time.

Mr. Editor:

It seems to be the opinion of many that our election laws are very unjust to voters who change their residence from one voting precinct to another within a period of thirty days prior to any primary or general election.

If I am not mistaken, by so doing, they lose their right to vote anywhere at such election. A rather severe penalty is it not? Why should they not be allowed to vote for all officers (such as county, judicial, legislative, state and national officials) excepting those to be elected for that particular district alone, or any similar officers of any other district.

It does not seem right to deprive a person of his right to vote at such has happened to move a few rods. As has happened to move a few rods. As long as he is a resident of the state, and otherwise would be a voter, he should be allowed to vote somewhere for all such officers, as above mentioned. If so permitted, it might increase his faith in the justice of law.

Believing that some move should be started to change the present law to that effect, why not call the attention of our representatives in the legislature to the unjustness of the present law and ask them to endeavor to have it changed, so as to permit this?

If all felt the way I do, they would write them to that effect at once.

Northwest Sound, Business Good By Fall, Says Bremer

The Northwest is building on a sound foundation and by fall business should be on a satisfactory basis, in the opinion of Otto Bremer, chairman of the board of the American National Bank of St. Paul and vice president of the Citizens State Bank of Brainerd, who returned this week from Washington, New York and other eastern centers.

"The farmers and business people of the Northwest during the past year have been readjusting their business to changed conditions," Mr. Bremer said. "Farmers are now expecting to make earnings on land valued at present prices and not on the imaginary war-time inflated quotations. People are beginning to realize that they must knuckle down to business and live within their incomes."

"The savings bank accounts in this area are increasing. Banks, business houses and individuals are putting their affairs in more liquid condition than for years. They are not plunging into new debts so freely. Sounder foundations are being laid for future business and progress. Extravagant habits of living are being mended."

"By autumn I think business in the Northwest will be on a satisfactory basis. We read reports that business is 15 to 20 per cent lower than a year ago. These statistics are figured on a dollar basis—not on a volume basis. We know that prices for farm products and many commodities have declined, so that if there is a decrease in dollar comparisons with a year and two years ago it does not mean that physical volume of business is declining to that extent. I expect to see moderate upturns in business."

"The financial position of individuals, business firms and banks never was so prepared to support an improved business trend as today. The Northwest, I think, is in a relatively better financial position today than other sections of the country because we have had our deflation over a period of ten years and have pretty well worked ourselves out of difficulties."

"How soon will industry recover? That will depend on when demand on the part of the public for commodities returns. Inventories are low. The public is placing itself in a position to buy, and when the people start buying the factories will resume production, the wholesalers and jobbers will renew distribution and the retail trade will become more active."

"The present is a period of saving and conserving and is laying firm foundations for a greater stability of business when improvement comes."

MOORHEAD, GLENWOOD SUBMIT PLAYERS

CAMPBELL ONLY QUINTET NOT AS YET REPORTING

TEAMS CAN CHANGE FROM DISTRICT BUT NO CHANGE IN LINEUP EXPECTED HERE

MAJORITY OF PLAYERS ON THE MOORHEAD AND GLENWOOD TEAMS ARE SENIORS

Two visiting teams in the regional which opens here Thursday with Brainerd meeting Moorhead, Campbell play Glenwood, had submitted eligibility lists today to W. C. Cobb, local manager of the tournament.

These two teams, Moorhead and Glenwood, present strong threats for the championship, the former being favorites because of former records, having won the state championship seven years.

Brainerd's list will be announced tomorrow, and although coaches have the privilege of changing their lineup from the district to the regional, Coach Bill Dammann is expected to have the same team he used in winning the district.

Moorhead's and Glenwood's list of eight players, their numbers, their class in school and the number of years they have played high school basketball follow in their order:

Moorhead — Willard Anderson, 17, senior, 2 years; Wilfred Erickson, 25, junior, 3 years; Carl Fridlund, 16, senior, 3 years; Robert Kall, 19, senior, 3 years; Matt Knauf, 22, junior, 3 years; Wilbur Marquardt, 14, senior, 3 years; Erling Scranz, 23, senior, 3 years; Maynard Thompson, 18, senior, 3 years.

Glenwood — Kenneth Leduc, 7, senior, 4 years; Andy Leago, 3, senior, 4 years; Andy Grimsrud, 9, sophomore, 1 year; Earl Hanson, 10, sophomore, 2 years; Walter Hammond, 4, junior, 2 years; Dean Brendal, 5, junior, 2 years; Harold Simonson, 8, senior, 3 years; Lyle Swisher, 6, sophomore, 2 years.

Marquardt, center, is the captain of the Moorhead team, Glenna Hanna is the coach and A. P. Diercks is the faculty representative.

Leduc captains the Glenwood quintet, A. W. Evanson is the coach and H. R. Hastings is the faculty representative.

Moorhead's colors are orange and black while Glenwood's colors are royal blue and gold.

Campbell is expected to send in its eligibility list by tomorrow.

Tickets for the regional games will be on sale in advance at Schnitz's News Stand both Wednesday and Thursday and the larger the number of fans who secure their tickets in advance the quicker it will be in handling the crowd. Arrangements may be made for allowing holders of tickets purchased in advance to go in at a special door without being held back by the ones not yet having purchased tickets when the doors open.

SPORTS KAYOES

By "HAPPY"

Some fellows consult the ouija board, some ask the stars and a few just out the cards to pick a winner, but we bank on Lottie. We asked her this morning about the outcome of the Moorhead-Brainerd game. She didn't flicker an eye-lash and answered before we hardly finished asking the question. "Brainerd will win," she says, "yes, it will be about the same type of game and the same score as when Mr. Dammann's lads (them are her exact words) took the iron out of Ironton."

Lottie tells us that a number of the fans thought that the numbers on the backs of the C-I jerseys the other night indicated the ages of the players. If that were true and the same held good for Brainerd you must admit that Captain "Nate" Schuety played a remarkable game for an old man of "76."

And another thing—Lottie wants to know why a lot of those people over in the A-men corner don't stand up when the band starts to play the high school song and the players come out on the floor. Come on fans, you live in Brainerd, why not act as though you hoped the home team will win, anyway?

From all indications that Moorhead-Brainerd game Thursday evening is going to be a thriller and we'd hate to try to pick the winner. As one paper says, "Moorhead, runner-up in the state meet last year, hopes to get back for this year's meet, but will play in the hardest regional tournament it has ever played in. The Spuds are pitted against Glenwood, Brainerd and Campbell."

Mankato is hoped to win its regional Friday and Saturday. The opposition, Mountain Lake, Fairmont and Luverne look pretty tough though. Mankato had an easy time in their district meet, holding the opposition to two field goals in three games.

Another writer says of the Brainerd-Moorhead game, "Moorhead has won 18 straight games this year, but is expected to meet tough opposition in Brainerd." Yes, we don't think those 18 straight victories mean so much either. Brainerd only lost three games during the season and it is possible that Brainerd had a tougher schedule. We are inclined to think that Moorhead may not have the competition in its district that Brainerd had.

Bemidji is favored to cop the title at Thief River Falls. Wouldn't it be nice if Brainerd had to play there? Bill Dammann's boys have taken two falls out of the Bemidji Wolves this season. Bemidji has Warren, Mahonen and Hallack as competition.

Rochester is sure of a trip to the state meet this year. The Rockets went well the first of the season but their late season record isn't so impressive, due largely to a hard schedule. Rochester boasts a couple of giants and three very fast little men to carry its banner in the state tourney.

Thirty-two Catholic high school basketball teams from all parts of the United States will be on hand tomorrow at Loyola University in Chicago to fight it out for the National Catholic intercollegiate title. The finals won't be played until 8 o'clock next Sunday evening.

De LaSalle high school of Minneapolis and Cotter high school of Winona are the two Minnesota entries in the National Catholic meet. Brother Richard, head of the Minneapolis school, says that his team has a good chance of coping the national title. He managed one tournament winner when he was at St. Mel in Chicago and he says that the present De LaSalle squad is stronger than that national championship team. He believes that De LaSalle can win with the break in luck necessary for any tournament victory.

The Winona school meets Spaulding Institute of Peoria, Ill., in their first game at 9 P. M. tomorrow night. De LaSalle doesn't wheel into action until 10 o'clock Thursday morning when they meet Saint Joseph high school of Enid, Oklahoma.

Howie Moritz Holds Scoring Lead. Montreal, Que., March 17.—Howie Moritz, meteoric Les Canadiens center, continued to hold the individual scoring lead as the National Hockey League season enters the final week. With one game to play Moritz has a total of 48 points. Ed Goodfellow of Detroit is runner-up with 46 points and has an opportunity to take top honors in his two remaining contests.

RUSSELLS TO MEET BEMIDJI CO. K. AT NORTHERN CITY

CAROL GUIN, FORMER B. H. S. PLAYER AND ALL-DISTRICT MAN, ADDED TO SQUAD

CO. K. HAS GOOD RECORD; NAGURSKI'S ADD STARS, ASK FOR RETURN MATCH HERE

Strengthened by the addition of Carol Guin, former all-district player and Brainerd high school star, Russell's Creamery Five will invade Bemidji tomorrow evening for a game with Bemidji Co. K.

Guin, always a tower of strength with former Brainerd high school team, will be a valuable addition to Russell's line-up. He can play either a forward or center position very capably, and earlier this year played with St. Cloud Teacher's college.

The game tomorrow evening will be called at 8 o'clock. Co. K. presents a strong lineup loaded with former University of Minnesota and Bemidji

Teacher's college stars. The team has an exceptionally good record this year. Among other games they dropped a close decision to the Crosby Inland Steel Rangers not so long ago at Crosby. The Bemidji Pioneer in a review of the game expressed the opinion that poor officiating at Crosby cost Co. K. the game and the Bemidji outfit had piled up a substantial lead in the first half.

Those who make the trip to Bemidji tomorrow evening are Manager Peterson, Captain Wise, Johnny Gablou, "Gunboat" Kane, Molstad, Jim Garvey, Ray Paine, Fuller, Benny Foster and Guin.

Nagurski's Bronks, traveling professional team, led by Bronko Nagurski, former U. of M. athlete, are anxious for a return match with Russell's. The Bronks have added Schoenling, All Big Ten forward, and Bondy, both stars of this year's Minnesota team, to their roster.

The first game between the two teams, played here several weeks ago, ended in an overtime victory for Nagurski's team. If another game is played it will probably be played here some time next week.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

After giving up Mat Tully because he is poor, Nancy Hollenbeck encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy sportsman. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with Roger Decatur, handsome ranger. She leaves her chaperones, the wealthy Porters, and secretly marries Roger. Nancy is happy with Roger in his rough mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a trip, the loneliness is unbearable and she returns home. She continues to keep her marriage a secret. Jack Beamer sends flowers. Nancy and her sister, Lou, attend the engagement party of May Belle Craig. Nancy longs for Roger. Beamer arrives and monopolizes her. Nancy repulses Beamer's advances. Lou is thrilled by Mat Tully's attentions. At home, Nancy's letters from Roger arouse her mother's suspicions. What takes Lou to the opera. Nancy is worried over Beamer's persistence.

CHAPTER XXX.
"Roger, darling I miss you more than I ever dreamed I could miss anyone in the world," Nancy wrote, blotting the ink with her tears.

Whenever she thought of Roger, so far away, she wanted to cry, and whenever she thought of going back to him in the cabin she wanted to cry, too. Her finger nails, grown shiny and pink again, fascinated her. She spent hours polishing them, rubbing cream into her hands. Thinking about the cabin. The stove that didn't draw. The black frying pan. Bacon grease. Seum on the dish water.

If she could only get him away from the mountains. . . . She tried to talk it over with Lou. "Lou, wouldn't it be nice if Roger Decatur were down here?" "Who?"

"My ranger!" "Oh, I always think of him as the ranger."

"You needn't! He's a gentleman, even if he is a ranger!" "Why, Nancy, I wasn't knocking him. Nor his job. Do you know, if I were a man I believe I'd go in for forestry myself."

Feeling Her Way

Nancy's eager face clouded. She began to polish the nails of one hand on the pink palm of the other. "Humph! Forestry! Large work and small pay. Buried in the sticks."

"They don't mind. For that matter, neither would I!"

The tears, never far from the surface, welled into Nancy's eyes again. "I don't believe you would! But I would! I'd hate it!"

Lou was looking out of the window, a curious, far-away look in her eyes. "I wouldn't hate anything with the man I loved. I'd go anywhere to be near him," she said dreamily.

"Oh, well, you can afford to be romantic. You aren't in love with anyone. Wait till you see a ranger you like."

Lou continued to stare out of the window. Her cheeks were burning.

"You know I did like that ranger, Lou."

Silence from the window. "Lou, he'd look wonderful in evening clothes. I thought of him at May Belle's party. There wasn't a man there who would hold a candle to him, not even Jack Beamer."

"Humph! Jack Beamer!" "Oh, well, you can't talk to Lou, she thought disconsolately. Lou's a man hater. Always was, and always will be!"

She began another letter to Roger. No use trying to get along without him. She'd tried, and she couldn't.

at any moment. The fourth in four days. This would have to stop. Things couldn't go on like this.

"More flowers?" Papa looked up over his spectacles.

Nancy giggled helplessly. "Is it a joke, or a bet, or what?" "I think it's a mistake. He must have put in an order at a florist, and forgot to stop it. I wish to goodness he'd keep them," she said, poking with fingers that were gentle in spite of her at the waxy green paper that covered Jack Beamer's unwelcome gift. Pansies. Baby roses. Gardenias. They looked at her with innocent sweetness. In the movies girls throw away flowers from men they don't like. Nancy always ended by loving him, and cutting the stems to make them last.

"You ought to speak to him about it," papa said, squinting at them. "Your mother won't like it. . . . that maidenhair smells nice. Kind of like the country."

Reminders

Kind of like the country. . . . like the woods. . . . Roger's woods. . . . She laid a piece of it against her lips, breathing in its good green smell.

Maybe she could talk to papa! She looked at him with mounting excitement. Maybe he'd understand. Papa, who read the sport page from beginning to end every night and was always talking about crack shots and prize fighters, and men who spend eighteen hours in the saddle. Surely he'd appreciate Roger.

She came and curled up on the arm of his chair. "Well, Nancy girl?"

How pretty she was! It was worth it. . . . worth all the drudgery and disappointment and failure to have a girl like that! What a smile, all tenderness and pride, he pushed back the papers he had been working over.

They were bills. The plumber's bill for the new bathroom faucets that were put in last December lay on top, and underneath one older than that. Dr. Deming's bill for Lou's tonsils; he took them out nearly two years ago.

"Well, Nancy girl, what do you want—a new hat?"

Nancy had the grace to blush. "I don't want anything," she said quickly. "Papa, you shouldn't wear a collar that's all frayed like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!"

He grinned. "No one is going to look at an old fellow like me. Not while I have a couple of pretty girls they can look at instead."

"A couple of big, bulking, lazy loafers, that's what we are! Especially me! Running up bills on you when you ought to be out working or something."

"Tut, tut. Nonsense." But she saw that he was pleased. And then, warningly. "Shh. Your mother will hear. She has one of her headaches. Louise got her all upset talking about some kind of a job with the Associated Charities or the Community Chest or something on that order."

"It's about time one of us did something. Piling up the bills—"

"Oh, that!" He pushed the little pile of them out of sight, smiled at her with false brightness. "That's nothing. I wouldn't feel I was a father if I didn't have a few bills. First thing I know, though, some young fellow will have the job away from me, eh, baby?"

Her heart leaped. She laid her cheek against his. "Maybe. I've been thinking . . . papa, you won't mind?"

"Mind? Why, I want you to be happy, that's all—"

He fumbled for the clean, folded handkerchief he always kept in his coat pocket, and wiped his glasses, scowling at them critically.

would listen—mama or Louise—"What! Your mother would not—"

"No, not really. You know how mama is. Just because it wasn't anyone she knew she wouldn't take it seriously and—"

Papa was beginning to get nervous. This wasn't what he had expected at all. He glanced apprehensively toward the kitchen door. "Just because he's a ranger she won't believe that I'm really in love with him, and—"

"Shh! Wasn't that your mother coming?"

"No, I don't think so. Papa, you wouldn't mind a ranger for a son-in-law, would you? He's wonderful looking. Nearly six feet, and brown as an Indian. It's sunny, too, with his light hair and blue eyes. And ride! Anything with four legs. He's so strong he could pick me up with one hand. He has, for that matter. But he's the most—"

He stopped her at last. "Now, now, you don't want to lose your head over some fellow you met on a Summer vacation. I suppose you met him this Summer?"

"Yes, out it's no Summer romance. From the first minute we met—"

"Shh! What would your mother say?" He craned his neck over the doorway, looking anxiously toward the door. No sign of Kitty. He relaxed a little. Looked at his lovely daughter with love and pity. What a babe she was, getting all stirred up over some good-looking cowpuncher. The fellow probably put an arm around her some moonlight night. He knew. He was a young man not so long ago.

Tenderly he smiled at the quivering girl. Gently he pinched her cheek. "So that's why you stayed away from your dad so long, eh? Having an affair with a cowpuncher, eh? Well. . . . His name changed. He became the bustling, glib, Peter Hollenbeck they knew at the bank. That's all man to marry, Nancy. In three months the romance would be gone and what would be left, eh?"

"Now you take any of the younger men in business. Take Frank Haworth, Frinstitute. Solid, substantial citizen. Makes approximately three hundred per month."

Papa dug a pencil out of his pocket, wrote neatly on the back of an old envelope, "$300."

"Not a great sum. But granting you could save five hundred the first year, at four and a quarter per cent—"

Money Talks

Mama came in and sat down. Picked up the book "Nancy had been reading. "Anna Karenina" . . . why do you read such outlandish things? You fill your head with crazy ideas!"

Papa went on figuring. "Compounding the interest—"

Nancy continued to lean on the arm of his chair. The meaningless figures multiplied under her nose. She thought wildly of calling a taxi and starting back to the mountains tonight. But she was too tired and the family wouldn't believe it anyway. They'd think she was going to see May Belle. Or the Porter girls.

What was the matter with them? Why couldn't they see what was going on all around them? Papa juggling bills, paying this one two dollars on the first, that one ten on the fifteenth. Getting deeper and deeper into debt, shabbier and shabbier. . . . Mama snooping and poking and prying into things, and getting more off the track every minute. . . .

There they sat, elderly innocents giving her advice. . . . And any minute Jack Beamer's wife might drag her into the divorce court, or she might go back to the hills and hide. . . .

Shakily, almost tearfully, she began to laugh.

"Now what is it?" "Nothing."

She was really thinking: Won't they be surprised if I have a child! (To Be Continued Monday)

MOORHEAD, GLENWOOD SUBMIT PLAYERS

CAMPBELL ONLY QUINTET NOT AS YET REPORTING

TEAMS CAN CHANGE FROM DISTRICT BUT NO CHANGE IN LINEUP EXPECTED HERE

MAJORITY OF PLAYERS ON THE MOORHEAD AND GLENWOOD TEAMS ARE SENIORS

Two visiting teams in the regional which opens here Thursday with Brainerd meeting Moorhead, Campbell play Glenwood, had submitted eligibility lists today to W. C. Cobb, local manager of the tournament.

These two teams, Moorhead and Glenwood, present strong threats for the championship, the former being favorites because of former records, having won the state championship seven years.

Brainerd's list will be announced tomorrow, and although coaches have the privilege of changing their lineup from the district to the regional, Coach Bill Dammann is expected to have the same team he used in winning the district.

Moorhead's and Glenwood's list of eight players, their numbers, their class in school and the number of years they have played high school basketball follow in their order:

Moorhead—Willard Erickson, 17, senior, 2 years; Wilfred Erickson, 25, junior, 3 years; Carl Fridlund, 16, senior, 3 years; Robert Kall, 19, senior, 3 years; Matt Knauf, 22, junior, 3 years; Wilbur Marquardt, 14, senior, 3 years; Erling Seranz, 23, senior, 3 years; Maynard Thompson, 18, senior, 3 years.

Glenwood—Kenneth Leduc, 7, senior, 4 years; Andy Leago, 3, senior, 4 years; Andy Grimsrud, 9, sophomore, 1 year; Earl Hanson, 10, sophomore, 2 years; Walter Hammond, 4, junior, 2 years; Dean Brendal, 5, junior, 2 years; Harold Simonson, 8, senior, 3 years; Lyle Swisher, 6, sophomore, 2 years.

Marquardt, center, is the captain of the Moorhead team, Glenna Hanna is the coach and A. P. Diercks is the faculty representative.

Leduc captains the Glenwood quintet, A. W. Evanson is the coach and H. R. Hastings is the faculty representative.

Moorhead's colors are orange and black while Glenwood's colors are royal blue and gold.

Campbell is expected to send in its eligibility list by tomorrow.

Tickets for the regional games will be on sale in advance at Schmitz's News Stand both Wednesday and Thursday and the larger the number of fans who secure their tickets in advance the quicker it will be in handling the crowd. Arrangements may be made for allowing holders of tickets purchased in advance to go in at a special door without being held back by the ones not yet having purchased tickets when the doors open.

E. M. B. A., LIVELY CONTINUE ADVANCE

Lively stepped right behind the E. M. B. A. by winning two games from Petersons.

Alderman-Maghan must win three games tonight to remain in the race.

SPORTS KAYOES

By "HAPPY"

Some fellows consult the ouija board, some ask the stars and a few just cut the cards to pick a winner, but we bank on Lottie. We asked her this morning about the outcome of the Moorhead-Brainerd game. She didn't flicker an eye-lash and answered before we hardly finished asking the question. "Brainerd will win," she says, "yes, it will be about the same type of game and the same score as when Mr. Dammann's lads (there are her exact words) took the iron out of Ironton."

Lottie tells us that a number of the fans thought that the numbers on the backs of the C-I jerseys the other night indicated the ages of the players. If that were true and the same held good for Brainerd you must admit that Captain "Nate" Schuety played a remarkable game for an old man of "76."

And another thing—Lottie wants to know why a lot of those people over in the A-men corner don't stand up when the band starts to play the high school song and the players come out on the floor. Come on fans, you live in Brainerd, why not act as though you hoped the home team will win, anyway?

From all indications that Moorhead-Brainerd game Thursday evening is going to be a thriller and we'd hate to try to pick the winner. As one paper says, "Moorhead, runner-up in the state meet last year, hopes to get back for this year's meet, but will play in the hardest regional tournament it has ever played in. The Spuds are pitted against Glenwood, Brainerd and Campbell."

Manikato is doped to win its regional Friday and Saturday. The opposition, Mountain Lake, Fairmont and Laverne look pretty tough though. Manikato had an easy time in their district meet, holding the opposition to two field goals in three games.

Another writer says of the Brainerd-Moorhead game, "Moorhead has won 18 straight games this year, but is expected to meet tough opposition in Brainerd." Yes, we don't think those 18 straight victories mean so much either. Brainerd only lost three games during the season and it is possible that Brainerd had a tougher schedule. We're inclined to think that Moorhead may not have the competition in its district that Brainerd had.

Brainerd is favored to cop the title at Thief River Falls. Wouldn't it be nice if Brainerd had to play there? Bill Dammann's boys have taken two falls out of the Bemidji Wolves this season. Bemidji has Warren, Mahonmen and Hallock as competition.

Rochester is sure of a trip to the state meet this year. The Rockets went well the first of the season but their late season record isn't so impressive, due largely to a hard schedule. Rochester boasts a couple of giants and three very fast little men to carry its banner in the state tournament.

Thirty-two Catholic high school basketball teams from all parts of the United States will be on hand tomorrow at Loyola University in Chicago to fight it out for the National Catholic interscholastic title. The finals won't be played until 8 o'clock next Sunday evening.

De LaSalle high school of Minneapolis and Cotter high school of Winona are the two Minnesota entries in the National Catholic meet. Brother Richard, head of the Minneapolis school, says that his team has a good chance of coping the national title. He managed one tournament winner when he was at St. Mel in Chicago and he says that the present De LaSalle squad is stronger than that national championship team. He believes that De LaSalle can win with the break in luck necessary for any tournament victory.

The Winona school meets Spaulding Institute of Peoria, Ill., in their first game at 9 P. M. tomorrow night. De LaSalle doesn't wheel into action until 10 o'clock Thursday morning when they meet Saint Joseph high school of Enid, Oklahoma.

Howie Moritz Holds Scoring Lead Montreal, Que., March 17.—Howie Moritz, meteoric Les Canadiens center, continued to hold the individual scoring lead as the National Hockey League season enters the final week. With one game to play Moritz has a total of 48 points. Ed Gooch of Detroit is runner-up with 46 points and has an opportunity to take top honors in his two remaining contests.

RUSSELLS TO MEET BEMIDJI CO. K. AT NORTHERN CITY

CAROL GUIN, FORMER B. H. S. PLAYER AND ALL-DISTRICT MAN, ADDED TO SQUAD

CO. K. HAS GOOD RECORD; NA- GURSKI'S ADD STARS, ASK FOR RETURN MATCH HERE

Strengthened by the addition of Carol Guin, former all-district player and Brainerd high school star, Russell's Creamery Five will invade Bemidji tomorrow evening for a game with Bemidji Co. K.

Guin, always a tower of strength with former Brainerd high school teams, will be a valuable addition to Russell's line-up. He can play either a forward or center position very capably, and earlier this year played with St. Cloud Teacher's college.

The game tomorrow evening will be called at 8 o'clock. Co. K. presents a strong lineup loaded with former University of Minnesota and Bemidji

Teacher's college stars. The team has an exceptionally good record this year. Among other games they dropped a close decision to the Crosby Inland Steel Rangers not so long ago at Crosby. The Bemidji Pioneer in a review of the game expressed the opinion that poor officiating at Crosby cost Co. K. the game and the Bemidji outfit had piled up a substantial lead in the first half.

Those who make the trip to Bemidji tomorrow evening are Manager Peterson, Captain Wise, Johnny Gabiou, "Gunboat" Kane, Molstad, Jim Garvey, Ray Paine, Fuller, Benny Foster and Guin.

Nagurski's Bronks, traveling professional team, lead by Bronko Nagurski, former U. of M. athlete, are anxious for a return match with Russell's. The Bronks have added Schoenling, All Big Ten forward, and Bondy, both stars of this year's Minnesota team, to their roster.

The first game between the two teams, played here several weeks ago, ended in an overtime victory for Nagurski's team. If another game is played it will probably be played here some time next week.

WINNERS IN MIXED DOUBLES AT VAN'S

EIDE AND MCGARRY WIN FIRST; TWO DOUBLES TIE FOR SECOND PLACE

Elde and Gertrude McGarry rolled 1029 to win first place in the mixed doubles at Van's alleys while DeRoche and Miss Kampmann, Rardin and Miss Hagberg rolled 956 to tie for second place in the mixed doubles.

Next Sunday two St. Cloud ladies' teams will roll Brainerd ladies' teams here.

PAUL WANER SIGNS UP WITH PIRATES

San Francisco, March 17.—(U.P.)—Paul Waner, hard hitting young Pittsburgh outfielder, signed his contract with the Pirates today. Waner was expected to play in one or both of an exhibition series with the Oakland club beginning today.

Homicide signifies the killing of one person by another. Murder is intentional and unlawful homicide.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

After giving up Mat Tully because he is poor, Nancy Hollenbeck encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy sportsman. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with Roger Decatur, handsome ranger. She leaves her chaperones, the wealthy Porters, and secretly marries Roger. Nancy is happy with Roger in his rough mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a trip, the loneliness is unbearable and she returns home. She continues to keep her marriage a secret. Jack Beamer sends flowers. Nancy and her sister, Lou, attend the engagement party of May Belle Craig. Nancy longs for Roger. Beamer arrives and monopolizes her. Nancy repulses Beamer's advances. Lou is thrilled by Mat Tully's attentions. At home, Nancy's letters from Roger arouse her mother's suspicions. Mat takes Lou to the opera. Nancy is worried over Beamer's persistence.

CHAPTER XXX.

ROGER, darling I miss you more than I ever dreamed I could miss anyone in the world," Nancy wrote, blotting the ink with her tears. Whenever she thought of Roger, so far away, she wanted to cry, and whenever she thought of going back to him in the cabin she wanted to cry, too. Her finger nails, grown shiny and pink again, fascinated her. She spent hours polishing them, rubbing cream into her hands. Thinking about the cabin. The stove that didn't draw. The black frying pan. Bacon grease. Scum on the dish water. If she could only get him away from the mountains. . . . She tried to talk it over with Lou. "Lou, wouldn't it be nice if Roger Decatur were down here?" "Who?" "My ranger!" "Oh, I always think of him as the ranger." "You needn't! He's a gentleman, even if he is a ranger!" "Why, Nancy, I wasn't knocking him. Nor his job. Do you know, if I were a man I believe I'd go in for forestry myself."

Feeling Her Way

Nancy's eager face clouded. She began to polish the nails of one hand on the pink palm of the other. "Humph! Forestry! Large work and small pay. Buried in the sticks." "They don't mind. For that matter, neither would I!" The tears, never far from the surface, welled into Nancy's eyes again. "I don't believe you would! But I would! I'd hate it!" Lou was looking out of the window, a curious, far-away look in her eyes. "I wouldn't hate anything with the man I loved. I'd go anywhere to be near him," she said dreamily.

"Oh, well, you can afford to be romantic. You aren't in love with anyone. Wait till you see a ranger you like." Lou continued to stare out of the window. Her cheeks were burning. "You know I did like that ranger, Lou." Silence from the window. "Lou, he'd look wonderful in evening clothes. I thought of him at May Belle's party. There wasn't a man there who would hold a candle to him, not even Jack Beamer."

"Humph! Jack Beamer!" "Oh, well, you can't talk to Lou, she thought disconsolately. Lou's a man hater. Always was, and always will be!" She began another letter to Roger. No use trying to get along without him. She'd tried, and she couldn't.

"Hollenbeck? Sign here, please." Nancy sighed. She accepted the big, striped box gingerly, as if it had been a bomb, likely to go off at any moment. The fourth in four days. This would have to stop. Things couldn't go on like this.

"More flowers?" Papa looked up over his spectacles. Nancy giggled helplessly. "Is it a joke, or a bet, or what?" "I think it's a mistake. He must have put in an order at a florist, and forgot to stop it. I wish to goodness he'd keep them," she said, poking with fingers that were gentle in spite of her at the waxy green paper that covered Jack Beamer's unwelcome gift. Pansies. Baby roses. Gardenias. They looked at her with innocent sweetness. In the movies girls throw away flowers from men they don't like. Nancy always ended by loving her, and cutting the stems to make them last.

"You ought to speak to him about it," papa said, squinting at them. "Your mother won't like it. . . . that maidenhair smells nice. Kind of like the country."

Reminders

Kind of like the country. . . like the woods. . . Roger's woods. . . She laid a piece of it against her lips, breathing in its good green smell. Maybe she could talk to papa! She looked at him with mounting excitement. Maybe he'd understand. Papa, who read the sport page from beginning to end every night and was always talking about crack shots and prize fighters, and men who spent eighteen hours in the saddle. Surely he'd appreciate Roger. She came and curled up on the arm of his chair. "Well, Nancy girl?" "How pretty she was! It was worth it. . . . worth all the drudgery and disappointment and failure to have a girl like that! What a smile, all tenderness and pride, he pushed back the papers he had been working over."

They were bills. The plumber's bill for the new bathroom faucets that were put in last December lay on top, and underneath one older than that. Dr. Deming's bill for Lou's tonsils; he took them out nearly two years ago. "Well, Nancy girl, what do you want—a new hat?"

Nancy had the grace to blush. "I don't want anything," she said quickly. "Papa, you shouldn't wear a collar that's all frayed like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!" He grinned. "No one is going to look at an old fellow like me. Not while I have a couple of pretty girls they can look at instead."

"A couple of big, bulking, lazy loafers, that's what we are! Especially me! Running up bills on you when you ought to be out working or something—" "Tut, tut, nonsense. But she saw that he was pleased. And then, warningly. "Shh. Your mother will hear. She has one of her headaches. Louise got her all upset talking about some kind of a job with the Associated Charities or the Community Chest or something on that order."

"It's about time one of us did something. Piling up the bills—" "Oh, that!" He pushed the little pile of them with false brightness. "That's nothing. I wouldn't feel I was a father if I didn't have a few bills. First thing I know, though, some young fellow will have the job away from me, eh, baby?" Her heart leaped. She laid her cheek against his. "Maybe. I've been thinking . . . papa, you won't mind?"

"Mind? Why, I want you to be happy, that's all—" He fumbled for the clean, folded handkerchief he always kept in his coat pocket, and wiped his glasses, scowling at them critically. "Pops, you old sweetheart, I knew you'd understand!" Nancy's eyes were swimming. The torrent of words she had been holding back for weeks bubbled to her lips. "I've wanted to tell for so long, and I haven't dared, and nobody would listen—mama or Louise—" "What! Your mother would not?"

"No, not really. You know how mama is. Just because it wasn't anyone she knew she wouldn't take it seriously and—"

Papa was beginning to get nervous. This wasn't what he had expected at all. He glanced apprehensively toward the kitchen door. "Just because he's a ranger she won't believe that I'm really in love with him, and—" "Sh! Wasn't that your mother coming?"

"No, I don't think so. Pops, you wouldn't mind a ranger for a son-in-law, would you? He's a wonderful looking. Nearly six feet, and brown as an Indian. It's sunny, too, with his light hair and blue eyes. And ride! Anything with four legs. He's so strong he could pick me up with one hand. He has, for that matter. But he's the most—"

He stopped her at last. "Now, now, you don't want to lose your head over some fellow you met on a summer vacation. I suppose you met him this Summer?" "Yes, but it's no Summer romance. From the first minute we met—"

"Sh! What would your mother say?" He craned his neck over the doorway, looking anxiously toward the door. No sign of Kitty. He relaxed a little. Looked at his lovely daughter with love and pity. What a babe she was, getting all stirred up over some good-looking puny fellow. The fellow probably put an arm around her some moonlight night. He knew. He was a young man not so long ago. Tenderly he smiled at the quivering girl. Gently he pinched her cheek. "So that's why you stayed away from your dad so long, eh? Having an affair with a cowboy, eh? Well. . . . His manner changed. He became the bustling, zealous Peter Hollenbeck they knew. But that's not the kind of man to marry, Nancy. In three months the romance would be gone and what would be left, eh?"

"Now you take any of the younger men in business. Take Frank Haworth, Frinstance. Solid, substantial citizen. Makes approximately three hundred per month."

Papa dug a pencil out of his pocket, wrote neatly on the back of an old envelope, "3300."

"Not a great sum. But granting that you could save five hundred the first year, at four and a quarter per cent—" Money Talks

Mama came in and sat down. Picked up the book Nancy had been reading. "Anna Karenina" . . . why do you read such outlandish things? You fill your head with crazy ideas!" Papa went on figuring. "Compensation the interest—" Nancy continued to lean on the arm of his chair. The meaningless figures multiplied under her nose. She thought wildly of calling a taxi and starting back to the mountains tonight. But she was too tired and the family wouldn't believe it anyway. They'd think she was going to see May Belle.
